

Economy Drive Is Facing Test In House Voting

Fight Centers on Farm Department Bill Amendments

RELIEF ISSUE UP

Retrenchment Bloc Fears It May Lose on Both Questions

Washington — (AP) — The congressional economy drive faced a major test today when the house assembled to vote on amendments to the record $1,067,274,427 appropriation for the agriculture department.

Economy advocates concentrated on a proposal to eliminate the measure provision for $250,000,000 of "parity payments" to farmers. These payments, designed to raise the purchasing power represented in farmers' products to the level prevailing in pre-war years, were not included in President Roosevelt's budget.

Some of the bloc working for governmental retrenchment were apprehensive that they might lose not only this contest but, simultaneously, their struggle to prevent congress from appropriating the additional $150,000,000 Mr. Roosevelt has requested to operate WPA until July 1.

Sabath's Appeal

This fear was accentuated by an appeal made to farm state representatives yesterday by Representative Sabath, Chicago Democrat who heads the powerful house rules committee, in behalf of the relief fund.

If legislators from rural areas "want our help on parity payments," he said, "they should help us on the $150,000,000."

Sabath's appeal brought a protest from Congressman Tarver (D-Ga.) who termed such procedure "log-rolling."

On the senate side of the capitol, where the farm appropriation must be acted upon after house passage, Senator Adams (D-Colo.) commented:

"It's nice of them to be frank about log-rolling. But it is a heck of a way to administer public beneficence."

A house appropriations subcommittee was expected to act on the relief allotment Tuesday.

2 Million Chinese And Japs Engaged In Bitter Battle

Shanghai — (AP) — More than 2,000,000 Chinese and Japanese troops engaged today in bitter fighting on three widely-separated fronts along Chinese rivers and in four other sectors with a steadily-mounting toll of casualties, adding to the more than 1,000,000 killed since hostilities began more than 20 months ago.

The bloodiest battles were being fought in northern Kiangsi province, along the 100-mile Sui river front where the Japanese were making a general offensive southward toward Nanchang — the provincial capital 170 air miles southeast of Hankow — as a possible prelude to a resumption of a campaign down the Hankow-Canton railway.

Gambling Equipment Is Seized at Racine

Racine — (AP) — A raid at Midway park last night, District Attorney Richard Harvey said, resulted in confiscation of gambling equipment and a tipoff system worth up to $10,000. There were no arrests. Harvey, who led the raiding party which included Sheriff Miles Hulett, said he would seek to determine ownership of the establishment.

Women Age More Gracefully

There were 40,544 women and 26,117 men 90 years of age or older at the last U. S. census. So there were 14,427 more very aged women than men. These figures may or may not be exact, because both women and men are equally inclined to forget their birthday anniversaries up to and including the seventy-fifth, but after that they are as likely as not to add five or ten years to the truth. When it comes to figuring — oh well, count the classified want-ads in The Post-Crescent News, for exercise. This one added a sale:

Madrid Fails In Efforts to Obtain Terms

Unconditional Surrender Is Reported Arranged On Franco Demand

WILL YIELD PLANES

Air Force to be Given Up Tonight as First Act Of Submission

Rome — (AP) — The newspaper Giornale d'Italia said today the unconditional surrender of Madrid had been arranged in accordance with the demands of Spanish nationalist Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

A dispatch to the newspaper from its correspondent with Franco's forces said General Jose Miaja, head of the Spanish republican defense council, was expected to deliver Madrid's air force tonight as the first act of submission.

The air force, it said, will be surrendered at the Cuatro Vientos air field near the city. It was said to consist of 45 warplanes, including 15 bombers.

Delivery of the planes, the Rome newspaper said, will be followed by the disarming of Madrid's militiamen under republican orders after which Franco's troops will enter the city.

It said large units of nationalists were expected to occupy strategic points in advance of the remainder of the army of occupation which, the dispatch said, probably will enter Madrid tomorrow.

Should the surrender plans fail, it added, hundreds of thousands of nationalist troops and thousands of guns have been massed outside Madrid for an immediate offensive.

SURRENDER NEAR

Hendaye, France — (AP) — Final negotiations for the surrender of Madrid to the Spanish nationalists and for peace in the 32-month-old Spanish civil war were said today to be nearly completed.

Some dispatches from both Burgos and Madrid, the nationalist and republican capitals, indicated a plan for almost unconditional surrender of Madrid so far advanced that Generalissimo Francisco Franco's troops might march into that besieged city today or tomorrow.

(The correspondent of the Rome newspaper Il Messaggero, on the Madrid front, forecast Franco's troops would attack Madrid in full force "within the next few hours" unless attack orders already issued were countermanded.)

The nationalist defense council, which rules republican Spain — one-fourth of continental Spain — met last night in General Jose Miaja's office to consider results of a peace mission which made a secret flight to Franco's capital to arrange the surrender.

According to advices reaching the frontier, terms of the surrender were simple.

The nationalist defense council will remove all mines from fortified and civilian areas, demobilize the republican army and publish a declaration recognizing the nationalist government as the only legitimate government of Spain.

The only thing said to have been asked in return by the Madrid regime was that a handful of its leaders be furnished means of leaving Spain. Whether this request was granted was not known.

Ohio Prison Warden to Fight Dismissal Order

Columbus, Ohio — (AP) — James C. Woodard, warden of Ohio penitentiary since 1935, was dismissed today by Charles L. Sherwood, state welfare director.

Woodard's counsel said they would fight the ouster, which is effective April 1. He already was under suspension.

Woodard was charged with favoring prisoners with wealthy or political connections and of permitting prison traffic in narcotics and liquor. The welfare director said regular gambling games for large sums "operated as a concession under control of certain inmates."

Husband Breaks Long Silence To Confess Strangling Wife; Body Taken From Deep Grave

Oklahoma City — (AP) — The body of socially prominent Mrs. Eudora Cunningham was dug by flashlight from a deep sewer grave early today after her husband broke a stubborn 19-day silence with a dramatic confession.

Just a few hours before a scheduled habeas corpus hearing which officers said would have ended in freedom for 33-year-old Roger Cunningham, he broke, admitted he strangled his wife March 6, and directed searchers to her body with a crude map.

In an interview later he said he had suffered a fit of rage because he was tired from overwork and the nagged him.

The strangling, he said, climaxed a year of domestic discord rising to fever pitch as the couple sat in his automobile the night of her death and she berated him for working too much and neglecting her.

"We sat in the car," he said "and argued. I got out of the car. Then she got out and said she was going to walk to town. I lost all sense."

"I don't know what I did. I didn't shoot her because I had no gun. I lost all sense, that's all."

Earlier, headed by Sheriff George Goff and Assistant County Attorney E. W. Brown, weary searchers who had spent many hours in a hunt for the 30-year-old Mrs. Cunningham, sped to the spot indicated by her FHA inspector husband. There, toiling in the red earth by the light of flickering signal flares, the searchers dug almost eight feet into the ground before the fully clothed body of Mrs. Cunningham was found.

"I strangled my wife Eudora and buried her in a partly filled sewer," Cunningham said in a signed statement to County Attorney Lewis E. Morris.

"May God have mercy on my soul."

Cunningham's attorneys indicated he would use an insanity plea to fight a murder charge in the slaying of his wife.

A formal murder charge was filed by County Attorney Lewis E. Morris.

USED AS DESPERADO'S SHIELD

"It was exciting, too exciting to remember all that happened," said Robert Nelson, president of the First National bank at Powell, Wyo., after Earl Durand, desperado who killed five men before he was shot down, used him with two other men as a shield against the bullets of Powell citizens. Nelson is shown at the telephone shortly after the killing.

Wyoming Killer Slays Self After He's Wounded in Bank Holdup; Teller Shot to Death

Powell, Wyo. — (AP) — A bullet from his own pistol delivered Earl Durand, the renegade of the Rockies, to his self-assigned address — "undertaker's office, Powell, Wyo."

The 26-year-old mountain Tarzan's trail of terror ended in a home town bank which he tried to rob yesterday after killing four pursuers during a nine-day flight from the law. The fantastic bank robbery attempt also cost the life of a 20-year-old teller.

Durand, who had eluded capture by a posse that grew to more than 100 determined men, was about to escape in a hail of bullets when Tipston Cox, a 17-year-old school boy fired the shot that felled him. Durand then fired a bullet into his own brain with his own six-shooter.

So ended a bloody postscript written in the history of the wild west by a mountain-wise young man angered by his imprisonment for killing a bull elk out of season. He broke from the Cody jail March 16, killed two officers who sought to apprehend him, killed two more men when a posse tried to trap him in northwestern Wyoming's mountains, and then came back into town to rob a bank.

Report Attempt To Kidnap Child Bishop's Granddaughter Threatened. Butler Says

New York — (AP) — An attempt to kidnap the three-year-old granddaughter of Protestant Episcopal Bishop William T. Manning last night was reported to police by a 50-year-old Negro butler, who said he frightened off two abductors after refusing a $1,000 bribe.

The child is the daughter of Griffith B. Coale, well known artist, and the former Elizabeth Van Antwerp Manning.

The Coales had just left for a party, the butler, Thomas Wilson, said, when two men came to the Greenwich village home, asked if Bishop Manning's granddaughter was in the house, and produced two $500 bills, promising, "there's $1,000 in it for you if we get the child."

The girl, Elizabeth, was on the second floor with her nurse, Wilson's wife.

The butler said he kept the old-fashioned iron gate across the front door shut, threatened to call police, and the men drove away.

The butler also saved the girl from drowning at the Coales' Connecticut summer home during the hurricane last fall.

Bishop Manning administers the 5,000-square-mile diocese of New York, reputedly the church's richest.

Anti-Semitic Laws Are Recommended for Bohemia and Moravia

Prague — (AP) — Anti-Semitic laws patterned after the Nazi Nuremberg regulations and later decrees were recommended for Bohemia and Moravia today by the national assembly.

The recommendation was considered tantamount to acceptance by the government members, some of whom participated in formulating it. The national assembly is a committee of 50 named to replace parliament.

Non-Aryans, according to the proposal, are those whose grandparents are Jewish. Other points are:

1. All Jewish capital must be registered by April 15.
2. The government is to place trustees in all Jewish businesses.
3. All transactions involving the exchange of ownership of Jewish property since March 15, when Nazis took Bohemia-Moravia under the protection, were declared null and void.

Many Jews, fearing the seizure of their wealth, hurried to dispose of it to non-Jews as soon as the country was absorbed by Germany. There are between 150,000 and 180,000 Jews in Bohemia-Moravia, not counting those of mixed blood. Prague has about 30,000 Jews.

Week's Weather

Chicago — (AP) — Weather outlook for the period March 27 to April 1:

Great lakes — Considerable rain or snow during the week; temperatures mostly near or above normal.

Upper Mississippi and lower Missouri valleys — Considerable rain in south portion and rain or snow in north portion during the week; temperature mostly near or above normal, except below normal part of the time in north portion.

Northern and central great plains — Considerable rain in south portion and some rain or snow in north portion during the week; temperature mostly near or above normal.

Plan to Ease Security Tax Gets Support

Leaders of Both Major Parties Back Morgenthau Proposal

ACTION EXPECTED

Administration Likely to Give Approval to Changed Schedule

Washington — (AP) — Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau's proposal to ease the social security tax schedule met today with the approval of leaders in both the major parties.

There was every indication that congress would translate the suggestion into law.

Republicans hailed Morgenthau's move as evidence that the administration had come around to their viewpoint.

Senator Wagner (D-N.Y.), co-author of the social security act, told reporters he thought the treasury proposal would pave the way for a system in which the government would share the cost of old-age pensions out of its general revenues, instead of letting employers and employees pay the whole bill.

Vandenberg Pleased

Morgenthau, appearing before the house ways and means committee yesterday, proposed modification of old-age insurance levies, which now are scheduled to increase automatically during the next three years.

Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.), who consistently has demanded that social security taxes be held at their present level, told reporters he was "delighted to know" that Morgenthau "is at last prepared to make a trust fund" instead of a "jack pot" out of the proceeds of these pay roll taxes.

Ten Republican members of the house ways and means committee issued a statement that "it is apparent an informed and aggressive public opinion at last has forced the administration to acknowledge an error and modify an iniquitous policy."

Accused Judge Loses Position

Removed on Charges of Malfeasance and Misfeasance in Office

New York — (AP) — City Magistrate Mark A. Rudich, cited by Special Assistant Attorney General John Harlan Amen for alleged malfeasance and misfeasance in office, was removed from the bench today by unanimous decision of the appellate division.

Amen accused Rudich of accepting bribes to approve improper bail bonds and of using his influence with fellow magistrates — in one specific case of attempting to persuade Magistrate Anthony F. Burke to suspend sentence on charges against a prostitute.

Amen's charges were brought in the course of a sweeping investigation of alleged official corruption in Brooklyn.

It was not known immediately whether the 56-year-old magistrate, whose term was to have expired Dec. 31, would be automatically disbarred from practice as an attorney as well as ousted from the bench as a result of the appellate division's ruling of official misconduct.

Charges against Rudich were aired in a presentation Feb. 15 by the first extraordinary grand jury working under Prosecutor Amen in his many-sided probe.

During the four-day hearing, which ended Thursday, witnesses testified that Rudich accepted $100 in the prostitute case and another similar sum in one specific bail bond case.

Rudich heatedly denied the accusations, testifying he "never took a cent from anyone."

Swiss Reserves Will Guard German Border

Basel, Switzerland — (AP) — Orders calling up frontier reserves to guard Switzerland's German border were executed swiftly today after the Swiss government announced all border posts were to be reinforced.

Mines at strategic points such as tunnels, bridges and passes were being charged, meanwhile, on all frontiers.

At Basel, trucks were requisitioned from private industries to more troops and garrisons along the Swiss-German boundary. The national government of Basel met to discuss the situation.

The precautionary measures were taken in view of the international tension.

Former Oshkosh Mayor Faces Federal Charge

Milwaukee — (AP) — A. C. McHenry, wartime mayor of Oshkosh who is one of 18 persons indicted by a Chicago federal grand jury on charges of using the mails to defraud, waived a removal hearing when arraigned here yesterday following his arrest in Oshkosh.

United States Court Commissioner Floyd E. Jenkins fined McHenry $5,000.

The government charges a $180,000 swindle was perpetrated, in which many persons were induced to convert their securities on promise of obtaining "fabulous" profits on cemetery lots.

Europe Waits For Mussolini Speech Sunday

Ice, Sweeping Out Of River, Causes Damage at Durand

Water Recedes After Highway Is Flooded In Antigo Region

Durand, Wis. — (AP) — Huge cakes of 14-inch ice crashed through the rear walls of several Durand business establishments today as flood waters swept the ice out of the Chippewa river. Porches on several houses were damaged and numerous telephone poles were broken off. The damage was estimated at approximately $1,000.

The points of ice chunks were forced through the basement wall of a pool hall. A 12-foot stone wall at the rear of Hubbard service station was demolished. The wall was two feet thick. The ice, which jammed here for a short time, was piled high along the river banks.

The river exceeded flood stage during the night, but receded early today. Durand escaped flood damage, only a few stores and home owners reporting water in their basements.

WATER LEAVES ROAD

Antigo — (AP) — State Highway 45, flooded to a depth of 12 inches at a point south of here last night, was clear of water today. Generally, streams in this neighborhood were confined to their banks.

Highway workers directed traffic over Route 45 with flares last night. Posts were driven along the edges of the concrete slab as an added protection.

Portions of several town roads northeast of Antigo remained under water today. One road was closed because a lake was forming behind Skinner dam, which regulates the flow of flood water from a large natural reservoir into Springbrook creek.

The creek, which runs through Antigo, was near flood stage but aside from overflowing into a few lowland spots was causing little trouble. Observers predicted there would be no danger unless a warm rain comes within the next few days. A stone wall, erected as a WPA project during the winter at a potential danger point, was holding the stream to its course.

GIRL RESCUED

Rice Lake, Wis. — (AP) — Eleven Miller, 10, rode a torrent of ice flood water 100 feet and nearly drowned, but she saved a mitten — and that was what she wanted.

Eleven was standing on a sidewalk watching spring flood waters rush 50 feet wide through a ditch, when she dropped the mitten. She tried to pick it up, and in so doing fell into the current and was carried rapidly downstream.

Henry Ashlin, attracted by screams of bystanders, rushed to the waterside with a pole.

The girl went down in a four-foot hole, but after several futile attempts grasped the pole and was pulled ashore — hysterical and badly chilled, but still holding the mitten.

Favors Restoration Of Horicon Marsh to Original Condition

Waupun — (AP) — Governor Julius P. Heil declared last night that "there is nothing I would like to see more than restoration of the Horicon marsh to the condition it was in when I was a youth."

Addressing the Waupun Conservation club, 336 members of which were present, the governor said: "As we all know, it (the Horicon marsh) is a natural refuge for fish and game. Some day I predict it will regain its former prestige. There are problems connected with its restoration, but I believe they can be solved to the satisfaction of all."

The governor lauded accomplishments of the state conservation commission and appealed to sportsmen to join him and others in selling Wisconsin to tourists and vacationists.

H. W. MacKenzie, commission director, discussed the forest fire control program and fish propagation.

Acting on a resolution introduced by Louis Dadke of Horicon, the club endorsed the conservation commission as now constituted.

Former New York Mayor Has Part in Hunt for Treasure

Wilmington, N. C. — (AP) — Former Mayor James J. Walker of New York has turned treasure-hunter, seeking gold and silver in a sunken ship 25 miles north of here at Topsail reef.

It's not a romantic quest with spades and storm lanterns, but a scientific search with the Carolina Exploration company along the actual work and the former mayor and his brother, Dr. William H. Walker, physician of the New York State Boxing commission, holding a 25 per cent interest in the project and remaining in New York.

The Walkers have a part in the hunt because they own an instrument, invented by Americano Graziano, an Italian, whom the former mayor befriended when he came to New York in 1915. It operates on a secret chemical formula and is based on radio activity and the attraction of the elements.

In any case, the Walkers said, it picked out this ship sunk some 300 years ago, since buried by drifting sand.

A giant steel caisson is being sunk at the site of the old shipwreck.

Give U. S. Market Back to Farmer, Is Murray Plea

Waupaca Congressman Voices Plea for 'Economic Justice'

Washington — (AP) — Congressman Reid Murray of Waupaca, Wis., told the house this week in attacking recently enacted trade treaties that congress should act to "give the American market back to the American farmer."

The "unprotected farmers of the nation," the Wisconsin representative said, had begun to "dissect the weasel words of the professional office seeker and are noting analytical of the bedtime stories of the professional politician."

"Let us bring the government back to the people," he added, "and wholeheartedly devote ourselves to the economic justice of our rural people."

"I wish to call your attention to the serious, deplorable and chaotic condition of the unorganized and unprotected farmers of America," Murray said. "These people are more disheartened, gloomy and more at sea than they have been at any time in the past twenty years. For ten years this unorganized, unprotected group of farmers have been contributing from 25 to 35 percent of the cost of feeding this nation."

Inadequate Income
He said farmers comprising 25 percent of the population received since 1930 only 6.9 to 9.8 percent of national income. He argued industrial wages always went upward "when farm prices and income increased."

The Wisconsin legislator said milk and dairy products prices had fallen to ruinous levels and asserted that in Washington, where milk costs 14 cents a quart, he could buy a pound of Wisconsin cheese for 14 cents which required about five quarts of milk to make.

Murray illustrated his speech with charts. One showed the tax expansion in recent years. We have 58 hidden taxes on a loaf of bread," he said, "32 hidden taxes on a can of peaches, 45 hidden taxes on sugar, 38 hidden taxes on a pound of bacon and 14 cent hidden taxes on every quart of milk, and that 23 cents of every dollar we spend is for taxes."

For Lower Interest
He urged lowering farm interest rates in keeping with value of money, saying if banks cannot pay over two percent interest farmers are entitled to lower rates.

"Let us be frank enough to say that the so-called reciprocal trade treaties are working, and are creating an injustice to the American farmer and the American laborer and that the farmer and the laborer are being crucified on the altar of world commerce," Murray continued. "These so-called trade treaties have been a stumbling block to every constructive farm program presented for the welfare of the farming and laboring people of the nation."

Murray said cheese dropped from 17 to 12 cents a pound when the Canadian trade treaty went into effect, that the American market was "right here at home" and foreign markets absorb less than 10 percent of the nation's production.

Murray also attacked "trade barriers" between states which he said prevented sale of milk. In Wisconsin he said milk on the farms is selling for 3 cents a quart and could be shipped to Washington, as an example, for 2 cents a quart.

"Why 15 cent milk," he asked, "when we have a national surplus?"

Hungarian-Slovak Troops Fighting in Ung River Valley

Iglo, Slovakia — (AP) — Air and landing fighting between Hungarian and Slovak troops was reported today over the Ung river valley, claimed by Hungary as her new frontier line.

Bombings of towns and villages behind the fighting zone was attributed to both sides. Losses of life as well as property damage were reported.

A Slovak aviation squadron based here took off to bomb Kosice in retaliation for a Hungarian air attack on this town in which authorities said, 10 civilians were killed and 27 wounded.

Slovak troops, part of the well-trained former Czechoslovak army, were moving eastward toward the Ung river valley along Slovakia's uncertain eastern frontiers.

Bratislava, Slovakia — (AP) — Semi-official sources said today that an armistice had been ordered in eastern Slovakia, where Hungarian and Slovakian troops have been engaged in border fighting.

Germany was understood to be trying to smooth out the dispute through diplomatic representations in Budapest.

Think Thief Balm With the Heat; He Stole a Toboggan

Pontiac, Mich. — (AP) — Temperatures that soared to 78 degrees apparently left a thief here a bit balm.

He broke into a shed at the municipal golf course and departed with a lawn mower, four shovels, two rakes — and a toboggan.

Kimberly Wins 3 First Places in Speaking Contests

Oneida District Votes to Build New Schoolhouse

New Building Will Replace 1-Room Structure in No. 2 Area

Residents of Oneida school district No. 2 at a special meeting voted by a majority to build a new state graded school.

R. S. Ihlenfeldt, of the state department of public instruction, attended the meeting and spoke on the need for a new school building in the district. George Eubank, supervisor of Indian affairs at Tomah told district residents about how many Indian tuition students could be expected and outlined the government's plan of financing Indian education.

The present district school is a 1-room building and with an enrollment of almost 100 students some classes are being held in another building. The school board is studying the building problem for some time already but tentative plans for a new structure, but definite steps were held up pending action of the voters.

The plans will have to be submitted to the state department of public instruction and arrangements will have to be made for a loan before contracts for the construction of the building will be awarded. Members of the district school board a short time ago conferred with the state school officials on the problem.

Pays Fine of $10 for Not Paying Mileage Tax

Lawrence Lebre, Sheboygan, pleaded guilty and was fined $10 and costs for operating his truck without paying the state mileage tax when he was arraigned before Judge Thomas H. Ryan in municipal court this morning. County police made the arrest.

Youngster Falls Down Stairs and Breaks Leg

REPORTED TO ENGLAND
Milkaukees — Robert F. Clark, immigration officer here, said Edgar H. Scie, 62, of Chippewa Falls, was deported today to England after serving two terms in Waupun state prison on morals charges.

THEIR PAPERS WERE AMONG BEST

James Donohue and Phyllis Subora, (above) both of Appleton, won Lawrence scholarships in the contest conducted last Saturday by the college.

Donohue won a $150 prize for his German paper and Miss Subora a $100 prize for her knowledge of French. The prize money will apply on tuition at the college. (Post-Crescent Photos)

2 Students From City Win Prizes In College Test

James Donohue, Phyllis Subora Get Lawrence Scholarships

Two Appleton students, James Donohue and Phyllis Subora, won prizes in the Lawrence college scholarship contest last Saturday, college officials announced today.

Eighty-five students, either high school seniors or 1938 high school graduates, competed in the contests. The prize money will apply on tuition.

Donohue won a $150 scholarship for his German paper and Miss Subora a $100 prize for her work in French. The grand prize of $200 went to Richard Thoma of Oak Park (Ill.) High school for his English essay.

The Lawrence Conservatory of Music held a similar contest last Saturday, the results of which were announced Monday. Perusal of papers in the college contest by faculty judges necessitated the delay in selection of winners.

Other winners of $150 scholarships and the field in which they competed were as follows: David Austin, Rhinelander High school, American history; Wesley Dale, Oak Park (Ill.) High school, chemistry; Marjorie Harkins, Riverside (Milwaukee) High school, English; Wayne Slife, Oak Park (Ill.) High school, American history.

Scholarships of $100 went to the following besides Miss Subora: Carol Heath, Wauwatosa High school, French; Edward Rodson, Sturgeon Bay High school, physics; William Lazar, Riverside (Milwaukee) High school, Latin; Jeanne Vogt, Oconomowoc High school, English.

Winners of honorable mention rating were as follows: Wayne Barlow, Oak Park (Ill.) High school, English; Alice Carr, Hyde Park (Chicago) High school, Latin; Andrew Galvin, Waukegan (Ill.) High school, chemistry; Neil Gatzel, Riverside (Milwaukee) High school, English; Ruth Krueger, Lomira High school, German; Harold Lew, West Division (Milwaukee) High school, French; Robert Loftus, Calumet (Chicago) High school, American history; Robert Mueller, East De Pere High school, physics; Otto Schulze, Riverside (Milwaukee) High school, physics; William Summerville, Albert Lea (Minn.) High school, chemistry.

Oneida Man Fails To Obtain Pardon
Governor Refuses to Release Stanley Webster From Prison

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison — Governor Julius P. Heil, on the recommendation of the state pardon board, has denied an application for pardon made by Stanley Webster of Oneida, 29-year-old carpenter and stone mason, sentenced in August of 1937 to one to three years in state prison for assault with intent to do great bodily harm.

At his trial, Webster pleaded guilty to a charge of assaulting his brother-in-law with an axe. In his plea to the pardon board he declared that he "got drunk and ran my car into the ditch. I took an axe to chop a post loose to get the car out. But they said I went over to my wife's place to kill her and the baby with the axe. I had the axe on me but it was to get the car loose."

Sentenced by the Outagamie county municipal court, Webster is a first offender.

Governor Heil this week took action on the first series of recommendations submitted to him by his newly appointed pardon board. He granted one absolute pardon, committed sentences of two prisoners, and revoked a conditional pardon. In addition he denied 45 applications for pardons.

Members of the new pardon board are George E. Ballhorn, Milwaukee, chairman, Dio W. Dunham, Neenah, and Theodore Mentages, Withee.

Edward Kercz of Pulaski, sentenced to life imprisonment at Waupun five years ago after the fatal shooting of Cyril Pepinski during a store robbery in Pulaski, also was denied a pardon by the governor.

CONDITION IMPROVES
Washington — (AP) — President Roosevelt, who has been suffering from a head cold, was reported today to be much improved.

Be A Careful Driver

Seattle — (AP) — Elliott Roosevelt's assertion that Vice President Garner is "in the driver's seat" as a likely Democratic presidential candidate next year drew friendly jibes today from his brother-in-law, John Boettiger.

Recalling the younger Roosevelt's boost for Garner in a Fort Worth, Texas, radio broadcast last Monday, Boettiger printed a one-column reply today on page one of the Post-Intelligencer, of which he is publisher.

Addressed to "Dear Elliott" the letter said "Out in our neck of the woods we sort of like Mr. Garner, too," but added "we'd like him better if he stood for the New Deal, and backed up the president like he used to do."

Guest Speakers Will Occupy Two Pulpits Sunday

Peace Play Will be Presented at First Methodist Church

Guest speakers will occupy two pulpits in Appleton Sunday morning, and an illustrated lecture, a peace play and a special evening service are scheduled in three other churches for tomorrow.

Prof. E. F. Krauss, of the Lutheran Theological seminary at Chicago, will speak at the morning service Sunday at Trinity English Lutheran church. He is the father of Mrs. D. E. Bosserman. At the Gospel temple where special evangelistic services have been held during the last week the Rev. Wesley O. Fritz, evangelist, will speak Sunday morning on "Living by God's Word" and Sunday evening on "The Most Difficult Highway to Travel."

A second performance of the peace play, "Brothers," will be given by the M. S. M. club of First Methodist church at 7:30 Sunday evening in the little theater of the church. Mrs. Harry C. Culver is director.

Illustrated Lecture
The Rev. Nicholas Miroz, Russian missionary-evangelist, will give an illustrated lecture on "Russia and Christianity" at a special program Sunday night at Emmanuel Evangelical church for which the congregations of Center and Greenville are cooperating. Stereoscopic slides will show religious conditions day morning the TSMil, o-a-B in Russia and on the borders.

The Rev. R. E. Ziesemer, pastor of Mt. Olive Lutheran church, will preach a sermon Sunday morning at his church on the theme, "Jesus' Saying, Verily, Verily, I Say Unto You, If a Man Keep my Saying, He Shall Never See Death." At St. Paul Lutheran church the Rev. F. M. Brandt, pastor, will preach on "Christ Jesus, Our High Priest of Good Things to Come." Public examination of the confirmands will take place at 7:30 Sunday night at St. Paul church.

The class of 18 confirmands at All Saints Episcopal church will make their first communion at a corporate communion service at 8 o'clock Sunday morning at the church. A breakfast will follow in the parish hall. The Rt. Rev. Harwood Sturtevant, bishop of Fond du Lac diocese, administered confirmation Friday night.

Culver To Preach
"The Kingdom of God" is the title of a sermon to be preached Sunday morning at First Methodist church by Dr. Harry C. Culver, pastor. Dr. John B. Hanna, pastor of First Congregational church, will speak Sunday morning at his church on the subject, "The Idea of Suffering." The sermon-subject of the Rev. R. H. Spangler at First Baptist church Sunday morning will be "Pilate Washed His Hands."

At Memorial Presbyterian church tomorrow morning the Rev. Robert K. Bell, pastor, will preach on the subject, "The Cross — A Terrific Fact." The Rev. F. C. Reuter, pastor of First English Lutheran church, will speak on "Jesus Facing His Cross," while at St. John Evangelical Reformed church the Rev. A. Guenther's English sermon will be entitled "A Messenger Likened Unto a Slave."

The Rev. E. Bauerlein will preach Sunday afternoon at New Appleton tabernacle on the subject, "Your Present Reaction to the Word of God," and in the evening on "The Present Crisis and Christ's Coming." "Reality" is the subject of the lesson-sermon for Sunday at First Church of Christ, Scientist.

Brief Outline of Developments in European Situation

London — (AP) — Expected Italian territorial demands on France in speech by Mussolini tomorrow shifts Europe's attention to Rome; Britain, France, Soviet Russia may conclude triple entente as nucleus of "Halt Hitler" bloc.

Berlin — Germany launches "tax credit" scrip plan, levies new 100 to relieve financial strain.

Madrid — Negotiations for Spanish republican surrender of Madrid to Spanish nationalists reported completed.

Madrid — Preparations to renew railroad service indicate imminent peace in 32-months-old Spanish civil war.

Bratislava — Armistice reported arranged between Slovak and Hungarian forces, halting clash in eastern Slovakia.

Tokio — Circles close to government report powerful German pressure to bring Japan into military alliance.

Berne, Switzerland — Swiss reserves called to guard German borders; mines charged at strategic points on all frontiers.

Free City of Danzig — German, Polish troop movements reported at edges of Polish corridor.

Prague — Bohemia-Moravia national assembly recommends anti-Semitic laws on Nazi pattern for new German protectorate.

MAKES $50,000 ON SWEEPSTAKES

A sweepstakes winner nearly every time—that's Sidney (Duggy) Freeman (above), the Englishman who is engaged in the not-so-risky-sounding business of buying sweepstakes tickets and shares in tickets from lucky persons who have drawn horses in the pay-off races. "Duggy" is shown in New York with some of his tickets. After the Grand National had been run, he estimated his profit on the race at about $50,000. He had bought about $700,000 worth of tickets.

Ask High School Girls How To Turn Out 25-Cent Meals

If you want to know how to entertain company at less than 25 cents a plate, ask the girls enrolled in the advanced foods class of Appleton High school. Each week groups of four invite a guest to join them at a dinner which they prepared in the kitchen of the high school and serve in cheerful dinette.

H. H. Heible, principal, was guest of honor Wednesday. The hostesses as well as the cooks were Rita Tilman, Ione Driez, Marion Maynard and Mary Tracy. The dinner included ham souffle with corn sauce, apple salad, hot graham rolls and banana cream pie.

The girls not only plan their own menus, but do their own marketing as well. They have become excellent bargain hunters, according to Miss Catherine Spence, head of the home arts department and instructor in charge. Moreover, they utilize their own can goods which they stored away earlier in the fall when fruits and vegetables were cheap. The pantries at the high school house jars of home made dill pickles, marmalade, tomato juice, canned peaches and pears.

Economy, however, is not the only problem. Menus are carefully worked out with an eye to nutrition and pleasing color harmonies as well. Wednesday's table was attractive with yellow china and a white linen cloth monogrammed with the high school's initials. There are no laundry bills, however, for each group is responsible for washing and ironing the linens used. Such is the education of the modern housewife.

Tokio Reports Reich Is Seeking Military Alliance With Japan

Tokio — (AP) — Circles close to the government said today that Germany was exerting powerful pressure to bring Japan into a military alliance and, while the government was silent officially, belief spread that a pact would be concluded.

Public opinion in the past has opposed involving Japan in any commitment to European war and it was understood the government, likewise, was attempting to avoid entanglements.

Berlin — (AP) — German experts on the Far East today expressed doubt of the value to Germany of a military alliance with Japan.

Germany was bringing pressure on Japan to convert the anti-comintern accord into a military alliance, they pointed out that Japan is considered fully engaged on land, sea and air in her invasion of China.

Besides, it was argued, the United States and Britain quickly could bottle up the Japanese fleet if it tried to aid Germany.

Board Reinstates Regional Chief At Los Angeles

Inquiry Finds Newspaper Gave Wrong Impression of Speech

Washington — (AP) — The labor relations board reinstated Dr. Towne Nylander today as regional director of the twenty-first region at Los Angeles.

He was suspended Feb. 27 "pending an investigation of the accuracy" of newspaper accounts of an address he made at Inglewood, Calif., on Feb. 6.

The Inglewood News quoted the regional director as saying, "when we go into a hearing, the employer hasn't got a chance." Nylander contended that what he had said was misinterpreted by the paper's reporter.

The board said an inquiry by Lieutenant Commander James E. Brenner, United States navy, retired, a law professor at Stanford university, showed no cause for the suspension.

"Doctor Nylander," the board said Brenner found, "did not intend to expressly state or to imply that the board is partial in its views concerning complaints filed against employers."

Impartial Hearing
"Doctor Nylander did not intend to convey the impression that the procedure of the national labor relations board does not provide a full and impartial hearing for employers against whom formal complaints have been filed."

After the Inglewood News article had been placed in the Congressional record by Representative Ford (R-Calif.), Nylander made public a letter dated Feb. 9 and addressed to the paper.

"Let me explain to you," he said, "just how a case is handled in a regional office, and I think you will see why it is that the employers feel that they haven't got a chance."

When the complaint is served there isn't a scintilla of doubt as to the employer's guilt. This is as it should be for we believe that the employer should not be subjected to the inconvenience, expense and possible unwarranted disapproval of employees and public which the issuance of a complaint on insufficient evidence would involve."

Four Bills are Given Approval of Governor

Madison — (AP) — Governor Heil today signed the bill of Assemblyman Double (R) Milwaukee, amending the present law on execution of tax deeds in Milwaukee county.

The bill requires that any person applying to the city treasurer for a tax deed must show proof that delinquent county taxes have been purchased before the deed can be issued.

The governor also signed a bill appropriating $2,500 to the University of Wisconsin College of Agriculture to provide a Wisconsin exhibit at the World Poultry Congress at Cleveland beginning next July.

The governor approved measures allowing Red Arrow clubs to incorporate and authorizing the secretary of state to destroy obsolete documents.

Program Will Commemorate Birthday of Constitution

Kimberly — An assembly program will be given in commemoration of Washington's inauguration and the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the constitution of the United States at 11 o'clock Thursday morning in the high school auditorium.

Following is the program which is open to the public: Introductory speech by Georgean Krueger; pledge of allegiance by students, led by Donald Verkuilen; "America," student body, accompanied by an ensemble; debate, "Resolved: That the Constitution has sufficiently provided for the demands of all times since its birth."

Affirmative: Joseph Van Lieshout, Anna Spierkies, and Dorothy Verkuilen. Negative: Anthony Van Staalen, Dean Barrard and Claire Lemmers.

Preamble to Constitution by all students led by Paul Van Dyke; "Star Spangled Banner." An announcement of the decision on the debate then will be given. The program is under the direction of Miss Jean Webster.

Better version of the public school will begin Friday, March 31 and classes will be resumed Monday, April 10. On Friday, March 31, the teachers of the public school will attend the North Eastern Educational association meeting at Green Bay.

The fourth annual Kimberly mill and community safety day has been set for Thursday, May 11. Commuters are expected to meet in the near future to make plans for the all-day event.

Green Bay Museum Also Has Exhibit; Lawrence Given Lithographs

Still on display at the Lawrence college library for the enjoyment of those interested in photography is a collection of outstanding prints by Rex Hardy and Carl Midans, both staff photographers for Life magazine.

The display will remain at the college until March 31. The library is not open Sunday, but visitors may view the prints other days and early in the evening on week days. The exhibit is sponsored by the Appleton Camera club.

At the Neville public museum in Green Bay, the third annual Fox River Valley Photographic Salon is still attracting visitors. Judges have announced prize winners and they have been designated for people visiting the exhibit. The pictures will be on display through the latter part of next week. The museum is open from 2 o'clock to 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

Three of the pictures are works of J. B. Kendall of Green Bay. They are entitled "Sky Pilots," "The Bird in Hand," and "Proud Providers." All are studies of birds.

A week from Sunday the opening of the Danish Decorative Arts Exhibits will be held at the Green Bay museum. Dr. Edwin Simpson, who has made an extensive study of foreign affairs and recently visited Denmark, will give a brief talk at 3 o'clock in the afternoon of that day.

Of interest to art lovers of this vicinity is the announcement made this week of a gift of five lithographs to Lawrence college by Grant Wood, famous American artist.

ONE OF 5 LITHOGRAPHS PRESENTED TO COLLEGE

The above is a reproduction of one of the five lithographs by Grant Wood which the widely known artist this week presented to Lawrence college.

The lithograph shown here is entitled "Tree Planting Group." The titles of the other four are "Seed Time and Harvest," "The Honorary Degree," "Shrine Quartet," and "Midnight Alarm."

"The Honorary Degree" may be a caricature of an event in which Wood himself took part, for he was awarded an honorary by Lawrence college last spring.

Aids Keep Cool in Spite of Roosevelt Outburst on Taxes

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER

Washington—Level heads have prevented an ugly scene from growing out of Roosevelt's temperamental press conference outburst earlier this week when—using his own phrase—he "said a mouthful" about the efforts of "well meaning" persons who wanted to help along recovery by economy and removal tax deterrents to business.

That would have been enough to dishearten most officials but Secretary of Treasury Morgenthau, instead of wilting, announced that tax revision work would go ahead as scheduled. He appeared neither discouraged nor ruffled by the president's attitude and is showing a streak of determination which is significant because of Morgenthau's dogged loyalty to Roosevelt and to the New Deal. Had anyone except the doggedly loyal Morgenthau been secretary of treasury his resignation would have been forecast.

Indeed many in Washington thought there would be a resignation by Morgenthau's right-hand man, John Hanes, undersecretary of treasury. This former Wall street man, who got religion and came to Washington to work for the New Deal, has been one of the driving forces in these recovery activities, an energetic business man who has been broad-minded enough to see that there is room in the United States for both the New Deal and prosperous business.

On the precedents, there should have been a resignation, for the doorstep of the treasury building is worn hollow by the outgoing footsteps of men who have resigned in this administration because they were crossed up by Roosevelt. Remember them? Lewis Douglas, the first New Deal budget director who quit when his economy plans were scrapped. O. M. W. Sprague, the monetary expert drafted from the Bank of England, who couldn't stand the monetary juggling which was being done in the treasury. Dean Acheson, once secretary to former Justice Brandeis, who was a liberal but unable to get into the spirit of Roosevelt's handling of treasury matters. And Thomas Jefferson Coolidge, who couldn't stick it out either. In each case men, attracted by the opportunities to work with this administration, found their ideas of practical policy so flagrantly out of key that they gave up in despair.

Nothing like that is in the wind this time. No resignations and no sulking. Apparently neither Morgenthau nor Hanes believe the president really wants to scuttle the work they are doing.

Harrison Delivered

Some Good Horse Sense

It was thought Senator Pat Harrison, chairman of the senate finance committee, might precipitate a situation by publicly resenting Roosevelt's attitude as he did after the president refused to sign the present tax bill when it was enacted nearly a year ago. Instead, Harrison kept cool. He reiterated his desire to work with administration officials in removing tax deterrents to business. Rather pointedly, Harrison delivered himself of this piece of horse sense:

"With the foreign situation most delicate, and our own domestic problems demanding courage and requiring our united efforts, we cannot afford to have misunderstandings among ourselves and when differences arise, whether economic, fiscal or political, they must be harmonized, to preserve and promote the general welfare."

That would have better come from the White House, but since it didn't Pat said it himself.

Congress Will Continue Policies in Future

The plain fact is that congress has the ball this time. Nuisance taxes and the undistributed profits tax expire at the end of the year. Since they produce nearly one billion dollars a year revenue, congress must take some action. Expert treasury studies will be a guide in this.

Actually Roosevelt has not called off the treasury. His press conferences statement probably was the result partly of pique. The economists in congress have been riding him hard. Harrison issued a rough statement just before the president returned from Florida. Roosevelt feels this group which is devoted to Garner has been trying to undermine him politically and he was in a mood to crack a head or two. Fortunately everything was kept under control after the incident and it may fade out quickly.

Two Large Farms in County Change Hands

Two farms in Outagamie county changed hands this week. T. P. Mansfield has purchased the 212-acre farm of E. C. Capron in the town of Cleora, and Edwin Franke has purchased the 120-acre farm of Christ Oppen in the town of Ellington. The real estate transfers have been filed at the office of Stephen Peeters, Outagamie county register of deeds. The following transfers all have been filed:

Amelia Washburn et al to John A. Beyers, a parcel of land in the town of Bovina.

Mary C. Meiers to Gordon B. Bergsbaken, a lot in the town of Grand Chute.

Mark A. Morgan to The Kaukauna Theatres, part of a lot in the Second ward, Kaukauna.

Hannan Leaves Post but His Influence Will be Long Felt

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison—The ranks of state capitol high officialdom, long dominated by LaFollette Progressive leaders, will take on a Republican complexion as fast as the new Hell Republican administration finds it possible to do so, recent events in the statehouse have shown.

Soon to go because his place will be filled by another will be one of the most widely known public officials in the state, Col. John Hannan, for 14 years head of the powerful state board of control, administrator of 17 state penal and hospital institutions.

Colonel Hannan this week stepped down from the chairmanship which he had held longer than any other man before him. The two new members of the board, Neil appointees, chose one of themselves for the board chairmanship. At the same time Hannan read Governor Julius Heil's announcement that he will soon be replaced.

COL. JOHN HANNAN "Soon to go—"

Marks Passing Of Era

Colonel Hannan's retirement will mark the passing of an era in the capitol, and in state politics. At 73 he is the last important figure remaining in the capitol of that little coterie of young men who joined another ambitious young man before the turn of the century and successfully captured the state government and started a movement of radical insurgency in national Republican politics. Hannan has been a LaFollette lieutenant since 1924, and during most of his adult life was an intimate aide and advisor of the elder LaFollette, founder of the present Progressive party now led by his sons.

For 14 years he has had one of the toughest jobs in the state service bossing the huge institutional investment of the state, a job which forced him year after year to pound the tables of legislative committees for bigger appropriations which were seldom forthcoming. Even this year, when he knew that he would be replaced by the new administration, his bellowing voice resounded through the legislature's finance committee chambers as he warned that the prisons, reformatories, hospitals and asylums maintained by the state were deteriorating badly.

Muddled Organization

When Hannan came to the board of control in 1924, he found an organization which had grown haphazardly, with no plan or program in line with modern science or administrative methods, with medical and educational services meager, with legislature and the public indifferent to the needs of society's castoffs.

Probation was non-existent, practically, and parole was neglected. Together with Dr. William F. Lorenz, now head of the state psychiatric institute, Hannan drafted a new program and organization. The establishment of the psychiatric and medical field service was one of the first changes, and was effected immediately. The educational facilities in all institutions were renovated, enlarged, and centralized under the state department of public instruction.

For 14 years the gaunt, stern, deep-voiced Hannan carried on what appeared to him to be a humanitarian crusade. He lectured constantly. He continually urged ever more development of institutional education, and rehabilitation, of a humane public attitude toward the thousands of persons committed to the state's institutions.

Fostered Prison Industry

Hannan's contributions to penal administration, and his development of prison industries as a rehabilitative device in Wisconsin, are probably the milestones in his career. He concluded that training in "the habits of industry" was the most important remedial force in the treatment of the human material which found its way behind prison walls.

This led to the growth of the "production for state-use" program, and today the Wisconsin state prison is producing license plates, furniture, paint, and clothing, and other material for other state institutions, besides large quantities of binder twine for Wisconsin farmers.

Under Hannan, the board of control was the first in the country to use outside prison camps without armed guards. Today several hundred of such men are engaged in farming activities, quarrying, and reforestation in various parts of the state. They produce food for the institutions, they have planted over three million trees, and more important, the proportion of "repeaters" among them is less than the average for prison and reformatory inmates.

In 1925 Hannan promulgated his "ten-year" plan on which the board's policy has been based since. In a preface to that plan he observed that "We must find the cause of crime and sickness. We must know and apply the antidote. Superintendents must be more than job-holders. The medical and educational staffs must be augmented and strengthened. Rehabilitation and not merely incarceration must be the objective of all institution service."

Be A Careful Driver

United States producers reported a 21 per cent increase in sows bred to farrow in the spring of 1939 compared with 1938, indicating 1939 pig production might total 80,000 head.

Present Pay Roll Tax Unnecessary, Lawrence States

Old Age, Unemployment Could be Supported by 2 Per Cent Levy

Washington—Although Secretary Morgenthau and the Roosevelt administration have taken a step in the right direction in agreeing to a postponement of the increase in pay roll taxes which has been recommended to relieve the small businesses of America of their present burden, which is as responsible as any other single factor for the present wave of unemployment and depression.

Even Senator Vandenberg, Republican, of Michigan, while commending the Morgenthau proposal, is willing to continue pay roll taxes at "present levels until subsequent experience proves a later necessity for change."

But the American business man knows by experience already what a devastating effect present payroll taxes have had, and he knows, moreover, that these taxes are not essential to the payment of unemployment insurance or old age pensions.

As a matter of fact, the actual expense for the present plan of old age insurance for the ten years from 1938 to 1948 would require only $112,000,000 a year. Unemployment insurance payments in the year 1938—a year of heavy unemployment—amounted to only a little more than $400,000,000.

2 Per Cent Adequate
Thus, this entire expense of about $112,000,000 could be derived from a pay roll tax of only 2 per cent and both employers and employees could be relieved of the present tax of 5 per cent—saving of 3 per cent. This would amount to more than $700,000,000 a year. Likewise, the use of that sum of money in the purchasing power of the nation, in the next few years especially, would contribute materially to recovery.

It is as Senator Vandenberg, who has been agitating the subject of unnecessary reserves, says, "the healthiest thing that has happened in a long time" that the administration has publicly indicated its willingness to revise the system. But the revision does not go far enough.

To offer the American people the proposition that an already bad situation will not be made worse is scant comfort, especially when the present tax burden arising out of the wheels of recovery. Evidence galore has been accumulated, and congressional committees can easily get it, showing that the pay roll taxes now on the statute books, and which it is now proposed to keep there, are interfering with the increase of employment.

It would be most unfortunate if the headlines gave the impression that there is to be an actual "cut" in pay roll taxes. It is reminiscent of what some administrations used to do here with respect to economy. Estimates would be prepared far and above what it was intended to have the departments spend, and then it would be announced with great fanfare of press hullabaloo that "economics" had been effected. The only thing that had been cut was an imaginary expenditure. And that's what is happening with respect to the pay roll taxes. Indeed, it is not yet clear that there will be any saving what it is intended to have on pay rolls, as only a postponement in the next few years has been recommended.

Needs Revision
What American business needs is a complete revision of the pay roll taxes and a curtailment down to 2 per cent, which is ample to take care of all sound requirements. Inequities in the law which penalize high wage industries as well as those provisions which permit a business with seven employees to be exempt and its competitor with

Counted on France To Help Save Country
Capek scoffed at the thought of an invasion of Czechoslovakia by the faceless men from over the mountains, and although he recognized that the country formed a pathway between two blades of grass, so to speak, he thought this war would never come. He counted on France and Balkan politics to preserve his country, and it was eight employees to pay the full tax have been brought to the attention of congressional committees by trade associations, but without result.

It may be that the recognition by the Roosevelt administration of the seriousness of the whole pay roll tax problem will wake up the legislators in congress to the fact that they are really the ones to whom the country has been looking for relief from taxes. Somehow or other the congressmen still wait for the executive to tell them what their duty is when, as Chairman Eccles of the federal reserve board pertinently pointed out, it is congress which has the constitutional duty to levy or repeal taxes.

Capture of Czechoslovakia Makes Capek Play Seem Real

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER
New York—A few years after the last World war there appeared at the very misty old Garrick theater, well below the theatrical deadline, a Theater Guild production of a play by Karel Capek, of Prague, called "R. U. R." or "Rossum's Universal Robots." It stormed the imagination of those who saw it and gave us the word "robot," meaning a more or less faceless industrial slave.

In Capek's play the robots were flesh and blood creatures without souls or the power to reproduce themselves, being manufactured by science through some extension of the Lindbergh chicken-heart-in-a-test-tube process, but with a sort of intelligence. They were great workers, and everything looked easy for the human race until science got too smart, endowing the latest model with ambition—a great mistake, as it made the great hordes of the powerful brutes revolt.

Had Capek lived but a little longer he would have seen his own people reduced to the condition of the robots in "R. U. R." and the terrible fulfillment of another prophetic horror of his which was produced some time later. In this country this play was called "The World We Live In" and it is my impression that it was a flop in two attempts, being revived by William A. Brady, after a first failure, only to stumble badly, if it did not actually fail, again. It depicted the human race in the garments and traits of butterflies, beetles and ants, and in a terrifying climax showed the insect world going to war again to the clang of steel and the blare of gun foundries in a dispute about the pathway between two blades of grass.

Capek continued to live in Prague to the end of his days, and when I interviewed him there one evening about three years ago nobody could have believed that any tyrant in this day would have the stupid effrontery, to say nothing of the fiendish cruelty, to attempt the enslavement which Hitler now has decreed for Capek's people. Seizure Combined Both Plays into Reality

"R. U. R." was absurdly improbable. It was impossible until the brown ants of the Nazi army, the faceless men in dehumanized form, strutting in the step that human beings never were meant to walk, descended on the helpless Czech republic, seized everything and combined the powers of both of Capek's plays into one ghastly reality. The people, by Hitler's decree are now not even full citizens of their own country but subjects, serfs or, much more aptly, robots condemned to work for the Germans under German masters and without even the small rights and privileges that Nazi citizens enjoy in Germany. It flatters the condition of Capek's people to say that they were captured.

Human beings are captured but objects are stolen, and the Nazis concede the Czechs no human rights or qualities. They are creatures, not much better in the Nazi scale than cattle or the dogs which sometimes help to pull little carts in the streets, and they may not demand but may only request or implore redress of individual acts of injustice. Czech women are protected from rape not by any consideration for them but by the Nazi laws against defilement of the Nazi breed, which laws and many of the future's utterances have plainly held that the Czechs and, indeed, even Hitler's Italian comrades in the axis are beasts.

300 Knights Hear Plea for Spread of Christian Justice

National K. of C. Chief Warns Against Inroads of 'Isms'

Kaukauna — An outline of the plan and the pressing reasons for the "Crusade for Christian Justice," which the society is now carrying on through its 2,500 councils, was presented here last night at a sectional meeting of the Knights of Columbus by the national head of the order, Supreme Knight Martin H. Carmody, of Grand Rapids, Mich.

Preceding Carmody's address some 300 members of the 30 councils represented witnessed a first-degree initiation, with the Kaukauna degree team in charge, assisted by degree teams from the visiting councils. More than 100 candidates were initiated. After the degree work, the Fond du Lac council glee club of 40 voices entertained.

Members of the Kaukauna degree team were John Van de Loo, Al A. Hartzheim, H. F. McAndrews, A. F. Creviere, J. E. Cavatone, John Coorsen, C. P. Goetzman, Pat Burns, Sr., L. J. Faust, F. Stanley Schmidt, J. Dockery, H. Maes, N. Esler and Carl Andersen.

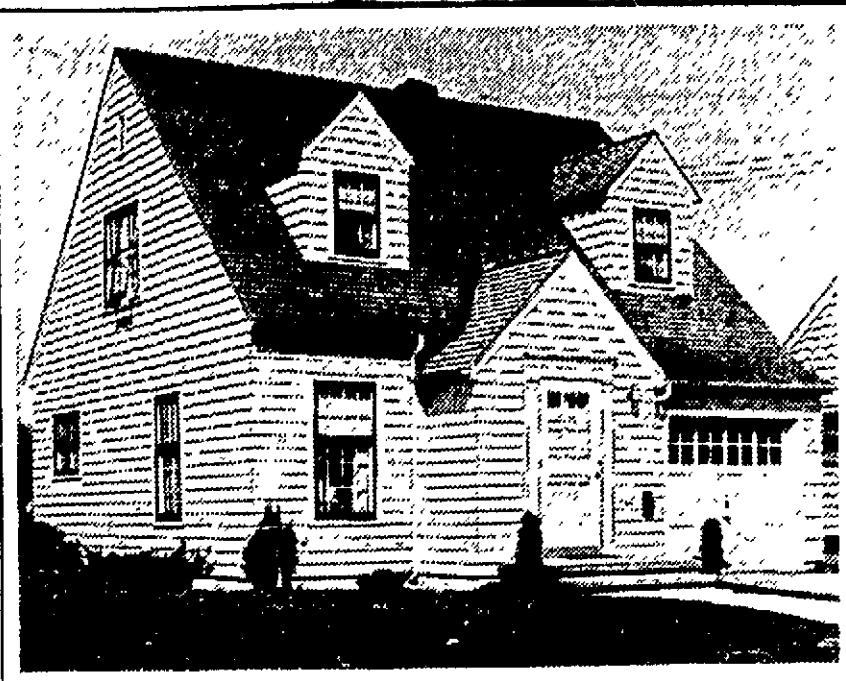

Al A. Hartzheim, Kaukauna grand knight, opened the meeting in the auditorium, introducing William T. Sullivan, Kaukauna, state deputy. Sullivan in turn presented Carmody. Following Carmody's speech a smoker and reception in honor of the supreme knight was held.

Sullivan will accompany Carmody to Madison tonight and Eau Claire Sunday evening where similar affairs are to be held.

Councils represented were those of Appleton, Oshkosh, Green Bay, Fond du Lac, Manitowish, Marinette, Sheboygan, Antigo, Kaukauna, Wausau, Stevens Point, Oconto, Manawa, Berlin, Wisconsin Rapids, Plymouth, New London, Marshfield, Beaver Dam, Menasha, Neenah, Clintonville, Two Rivers, West Bend, Rhinelander, Port Washington, Tomahawk, Algoma, Sturgeon Bay and Chilton.

Declaring that a great body of radicals was actually directing both the thinking and conduct of many of the educational institutions of the country, that they are controlling labor organizations, youth societies and many other movements, and even occupying high positions of responsibility in our government, Supreme Knight Carmody called on the Knights of Columbus to dedicate themselves to the removal of everything possible to remove the cause of communism and other radical and subversive tendencies, and to promote Christian principles.

These it followed, he said, would take away from these Godless philosophies the appeal they now have for many people.

Kaukauna—Sealed bids for lots 14, 16 and 18, in Black's plat, Second ward, will be received up to 5 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. April 5. Lester J. Brenzel, city clerk, said this morning. The council received an offer of $150 for the three lots on Garfield street, at its Tuesday meeting, and decided the correct business procedure would be to advertise for bids.

with augmented zeal and devotion, but to this there must also be added the corrective principles of Christian charity and Christian justice. There must now be promoted in our councils and impressed upon our members the five important principles of our Crusade for Christian Justice. These call for devotion to God and sanctification of self, for knowledge of the truths and the faith we profess, for action in imparting those truths and that faith to others, for unity in the great crisis we are facing that there may be no divided counsel, and for strength in numbers, and more in spirit, that we may stand unyielding, a mighty force for God and country. These five principles the Knights must now promote and practice. To these let us all dedicate unreservedly our time, our strength and the abilities and talents God has given us."

The Kaukauna office of the Appleton Post-Crescent is located in the Jules Mertes barbershop on Wisconsin avenue. William Dowling is the correspondent in charge and the telephone number is 107. Subscribers may call this number until 6:30 in the evening if their papers were not delivered.

Committee Will Study Purchase Of Golf Course

Group Named by Mayor
To Meet With Owner of Grounds

Kaukauna — The committee appointed Tuesday by Mayor Lewis F. Nelson to investigate the possibility of the city taking over the golf course will meet with Malachai Ryan, owner of the property, Sunday, members said this morning. On the committee are Aldermen Walter Kilgas and Raymond Nagel and Harry F. McAndrews, city attorney. All are also members of the city athletic commission.

In a letter to the mayor and council, read at Tuesday's meeting, the commission said that Mr. Ryan would be willing to enter into a long term agreement for lease or purchase of the property.

"If private persons or organizations can do anything about it, now is the time they should act," the commission's letter ran, "and if private persons cannot we believe that the city should give the matter some thought. The city council has lately been considering projects by which persons on relief or borderline cases might receive some employment. We believe that if the city owned this property, in addition to paying for itself, it would support an annual payroll of about $1,500. In addition to being a fine place for playing golf, the property has become very popular as a winter playground and there have been as many as 250 people on the grounds in one day this winter."

Tryouts Scheduled For Extemporaneous Speaking at School
Tryouts for the Bolton-Roth extempore speaking recital scheduled at Appleton High school for April 24 will be held next week, according to John Goodrich, history instructor and faculty adviser. Both boys and girls may compete for one of the five speaking positions. One from the group will then be selected to represent Appleton High school at the Fox River Valley recital to be held May 4 at North High school, Sheboygan.

Current affairs, especially those recently discussed in the January, February and March issues of leading periodicals, will form the subject matter for the talks. The night of the recital each student will be given five topics from which to choose the one on which he wishes to speak. He will then be given a hour to prepare a five to seven minute discussion which must be delivered without the use of notes or materials of any kind.

The Bolton-Roth recital is sponsored by the classes of 1939 and 1941 and the Girl Reserves in memory of Ted Bolton and Carlton Roth who lost their lives on Lake Winnebago. Each of the five participants will receive the high school speech award.

SCOUTS TAKE HIKE
Kaukauna—Scouts of St. Mary's Troop No. 27 held an overnight hike last night to the cabin in Riverside park. Scoutmaster Sylvester Lehrer was in charge.

OPENS LAW OFFICE
Urban P. Van Susteren, Little Chute, who was admitted to the bar in June 1938 has opened an office in the Whedon building, 106 N. Oneida street. Van Susteren was a law fellow on the staff of the attorney general while attending the University of Wisconsin and since last June was associated with the William H. Sheldon law firm at Elkhorn.

FRACTURES ARM
John Weyenberg, Kimberly, fractured his left forearm when it caught in a paper machine at the Kimberly Clark mill yesterday morning. He was taken to St. Elizabeth hospital for treatment.

Open Membership Drive Of Advancement Group

Kaukauna—With a goal of at least 150 members the annual drive of the Kaukauna Advancement association got under way this week, according to George R. Greenwood, president. M. J. Verfurth heads the committee, assisted by Norman Weigman and Frank Geurtz. Statements are being sent to every businessman in the city, with a report of the association's 1938 activities. When 1939 dues are received the association signs are mailed out.

Be A Careful Driver
A law introducing the new identity card, known as the "Kennkarte," was made public last July. All Germans from age 15 upward may apply for such a card, but for a Jew it is compulsory. Even for a three months' old Jewish baby, parents must secure a card.

The report of the Bureau of Economics of the Department of Agriculture covers the story of oleomargarine and the fight against it from start to finish. It goes back even to the early legislation that sprouted over half a century ago. It examines into the effectiveness of oleo taxes, arguments in defense of the legislation and retaliation that has taken place and is under way.

It apparently carries the conviction that Wisconsin and similar states are suffering from boycotts and other methods of retaliation. Among other things it cites the bill introduced in this session of the Arkansas legislature which proposes a 25 per cent tax on milk, cream, butter and apples from Wisconsin, Washington, Iowa and Minnesota because these states have used the axe hardest on oleo. That is not a boycott but that is the sort of legislation that has been making its way in the country.

Yet acceptance of this evidence at any kind of a par value is unwise. Everyone knows how easy it is to introduce a bill in the legislature. Such fact does not constitute passage nor amount to actual retaliation any more than one swallow makes a summer or a drunk. But it does indicate the way the wind is blowing and a pile of other evidence reveals the danger of a hurricane.

But weaving through the entire article, and the facts collected, is the prominence of error arising in a policy that proposes by law to put Americans engaged in a lawful undertaking out of business by preventing them from getting orders.

The erroneous extent of this notion may be found within the various provisions of anti-oleo laws themselves. Thus Texas has a 10 cent tax on oleo if it contains "any fat or oil" other than the sort raised in Texas, but oleo made with cottonseed oil may be placed on the middle of the table without penalty and praised until the end of time.

The bureau points out, too, that the argument which helped pass this law in Wisconsin—that is, that the price of butter will go up with the exclusion of oleo, cannot take place since we have to the south of us a state without oleo taxes and we have state borders that butter can pass freely.

Moreover the bureau concludes as it deals with each of the arguments put forth to support this legislation that oleo taxes have signally failed to accomplish the purpose intended and that those who have studied the question closest and without animus or prejudice conclude that the legislation has done oleo some harm, and done other trade some harm, without doing butter any good, or if slight advantage does accrue to butter no advantage accrues to the American farmer.

The extent to which this idea of law-making has been driven is further illustrated by the case of South Dakota where a tax of 5 cents a pound was placed on vegetable cooking compounds unless made of corn oil. Of course South Dakota had corn but what she was really trying to do was to protect lard because she was a great pork producing state. Deliberately, her leaders declared:

"Any scallied substitute for use in place of lard reduces the demand for and consequently the price of pure lard and in turn has a depressing effect on hog prices. This tax on lard substitutes will tend to restore the market for lard."

But South Dakota in repealing this act has shown the way back to other states. Has evidenced a leadership that should be followed.

The law is the cradle to protect our people against alien peoples are based upon a variety of sound reasons, a principal one being the high standard of American living as compared to that of many nations who crave our markets. Obviously that sort of argument has no application within the confines of this country.

The clerk then should go. We think the strongest reason against it is that it is very similar to a law passed in 1929 that created a tariff on imported butter that expired in 1932 and that was adopted in 1932, but that never states a pound to follow the same rule as lard and oleo and that all that will suffer by barriers created around us.

A REAL CANAL NEED

There is one place where the Administration may do some canal digging without wasting the people's money for the creation of mere peacemakers' top waters. That place is Panama.

Plans have been developed to enlarge and extend the Panama Canal and make more unlikely its plugging up in case of war or the ever threatening mountain slides. The engineers have recommended an extra set of locks which were recently explained by the Assistant Secretary of War:

"In the design and construction of the third set of lock chambers for the Panama Canal it is intended to locate and protect them so as to give greatly increased assurance that the canal will be continuously available for use by the navy."

The estimate of 200 million dollars is not unreasonable compared to the desired objective and the immense saving in avoiding duplication of naval facilities and naval units on both coasts.

The proposed set of locks is to be located at some distance from the two sets now in existence. In conjunction with modern means of protection the hazards of either sabotage, aerial bombing or slides closing navigation are so reduced as to almost remove them.

But if we were prevented from passing our great battle fleets from one ocean to another as necessarily demanded our effective strength would be cut in two, or, putting it more brightly, our strength is practically doubled because of the existence of the canal. Therefore its enlargement is a matter of profoundly sound business as well as a protective value of great worth. It is extremely good business because it will save the necessity of the construction and maintenance of another navy. And when the cost of one of those 45,000 ton battleships, just one, is considered the advisability of proceeding with the canal is too manifest for words.

When we have urgent and sensible reasons to spend the national income in such a manner they only tend to make appear the more sickly and puny such wasteful ventures as the Florida ship canal.

THE CONSTANT CRY OF "WOLF"

With the exception of Czechoslovakia there has been a great deal of artificiality about the news sent and the attitudes struck by opponents of Germany.

Why, indeed, should the nations of the world beat the tom-toms so loudly when Memel, a city whose vote has been 80 per cent for the German parties, goes back into the German fold where it has reposed for some 400 years since it was presented by its founders to the Teutonic Knights?

A number of reasons may account for the effort to terrorize Americans out of their wits. One of them may be good. Most of them appear as the forerunners of a beautiful line of propaganda.

Of course, there hangs over Europe the age-old hatred resting on the lands like a heavy fog. The Germans have been responsible for their share of it, perhaps more. But this fog did not accumulate in 1914 nor since. It has been accumulating for centuries. If Europe wants swamp fogs as regular lung food it must not complain if America shows no relish for the article. We know full well that such swamp fogs of hatred cannot be transported to this country in sufficient quantities to make a pronounced effect upon our daily ozone. Like a red pepper they may compel a sneeze or cough now and then but that will not debilitate our people nor, in the long run, seriously poison our land. The most effective way they can injure us is to have us send millions of armed men to Europe to inhale this poison and as a result, wither if not die.

Germany, in taking Memel, the Saar, and the Rhineland, took strictly German territory of which it had been deprived by the allies' victory of arms. To denounce Germany or try to shout her down for doing this very natural thing may succeed in many quarters but it should not prevent the great majority of our people from looking back to the Treaty of Versailles and realizing as they review it that the nations that compelled those terms must accept a material share of the responsibility for Hitler, Nazism, and the prevailing turmoil just as surely as the czars and their haughty and autocratic conduct helped to usher communism into the world.

THE VALUE OF BACHELORS

"But up in his den—Ah, my bachelor chum— I have sat with him there in the gloom.

When the leech of his lips died away To be a phantom of mirth in the room.

And to look on him there you would love him, for all His ridiculous ways, and be dumb As the little girl-face that smiles down from the wall.

On the tears of my bachelor chum."

The gift of 6 1/2 million dollars to Northwestern University by Walter P. Murphy, a bachelor, will insure largely to young men without the means to acquire an education but possessing the mental capacity for the absorption and application of technological knowledge.

Mr. Murphy's generosity has been matched in the past by many other bachelors and no doubt will be matched again.

Here we find a valuable use for the bachelor as we may note at the same time that the totalitarian governments despise the unmarried man, tax him with an extra twinge of pain and call him an enemy of the state.

But the bachelor, without the usually steadfast family anchors, is bound to permit his constructive ability as well as his spring fancies to wander. If he is wealthy he is certain to find many needs and crannies where improvement is suggested and his talents are invited to apply themselves.

And although Mr. Murphy may go into the ever silent beyond without leaving

DALE HARRISON'S In Old New York

New York—Living conditions for the Poor Working Girl in New York have always been a problem. Young women, seeking fame and fortune—or just a plain livelihood—in the city, generally settle down to modest, even miserly, wages. This means that they haven't much money to pay for lodgings.

For the past 22 years New York has had The Association to Promote Proper Housing for Girls. The association, operating without profit, concerns itself with the business of finding attractive lodgings at low rentals for girls who live alone. As a result of its activities, girls are being housed for as little as $2.75 a week; and in many cases the association has carried the girls along when they lost their jobs.

A great ego-deflator for dyed-in-the-wool New Yorkers are some figures a Los Angeles fellow gave me and which I jotted down.

"From New York?" he inquired patronizingly. When I confessed and threw myself upon the mercy of the court, he said:

"New York is much too small for me. I like a big city like Los Angeles."

When I said New York was much larger than his town, he sighed tolerantly.

"New Yorkers are so provincial. They are like ostriches—burying their heads in the sands and failing to observe realities." Whereupon he gave out with these figures:

Manhattan has 41 square miles. Los Angeles has 442. The city of London occupies 144 square miles, and if you tacked London onto the greater city of New York—285 square miles, Los Angeles would be bigger than both of them put together.

I said "Hmmp!" and departed with my head bowed in shame.

Weather Forecast: Snow.

They have taken the idea of flour mill blowers, tinkered with it, and finally perfected machinery to create snowstorms all summer long, and deuce take the boiling sun and torrid temperature. It is a feature of "Winter Wonderland," a Fair concession in which Idaho's famous Sun Valley winter resort has been recreated on a small scale in defiance of the seasons.

There will be a ski jump—not as large as the one on Treasure Island in San Francisco Bay, incidentally—toboggan slide, outdoor skating on a man-made lake of ice, not to mention the snowstorms. The ice costs more than a top out of silt—about $1 a pound.

The snowfall will be accomplished, no matter how hot the day, by means of 50 outlets placed in high places within the concession. From these outlets, by means of fans and things, the man-made snow will sift softly down on the straw hats and sunburned faces of the crowds, the skaters and the merry-makers.

The "Winter Wonderland" cost $500,000 to build, and will require another quarter of a million dollars to operate the expense of summertime snowstorms being what it is.

The literary style of press agents is often refreshing and sometimes astonishing. For instance: "There are night clubs which get more celebrities, perhaps, than the Havana-Madrid, but none gets a wider variety. On one occasion could be seen Cagancho, Spain's greatest matador, the actresses Peggy Fears and Lupe Velez. On another occasion the rumba floor supported the dancing feet of such persons as Frances Farmer and her husband, Lief Erickson, Jack Dempsey and his wife (Hannah Williams), Peter Arno, the artist, and Brenda Frazier, the debutante. Once in a while an occasional screwball wanders in."

It might be mentioned that there is hardly a spot in New York where at sometime or other during the night a screwball doesn't wander in. Lupe Velez, incidentally, may be planning to become a New Yorker. She recently leased a Park Avenue apartment. (Copyright 1939)

Looking Backward

25 YEARS AGO

Saturday, March 28, 1914 About 800 persons saw Appleton High school defeat Oshkosh by a 32 to 21 score and Janesville down Fond du Lac, 23 to 16, in the state tournament at the armory the previous evening. Appleton and Janesville were to clash for the title that evening. Playing for Appleton against Oshkosh were Bushy, Wunderlich, Albright, Saeker and Hollenback.

It was reported that 97 per cent of the homes in Appleton were equipped with mail boxes. Postal officials stated the boxes were a convenience to both patrons and carriers.

The teachers institute then being held at the courthouse was well attended, about 75 instructors taking part. County Superintendent A. G. Meating, Prof. John Hale and Miss Josephine Driscoll of the training school at Kaukauna and Prof. L. F. Schussmann of the Kaukauna city schools were conducting the institute.

10 YEARS AGO

Saturday, March 23, 1929

Seven Neenah High school basketball players were to close their high school careers at the state tournament to be held in Madison. They were John Schneller, Mitchell Johnson, Herbert Thermanson, Karl Gaertner, Howard Staeker, Paul Grogan and John Hewitt.

George Nixon and Carl S. McKee were to carry the solo parts in the presentation of Stainer's "Circus Polka" which was to be presented at the Methodist church Sunday afternoon.

William Haag, 223 Maria street, Kaukauna, was to make his third trip to Germany in a 16-year period when he departs for a visit with relatives in that country in April.

While flood waters still covered roads in several sections of the county, especially in the vicinity of Black Creek, Shiocion and New London, the waters were gradually receding and every measure was being taken to keep the roads open to traffic, according to Frank R. Appleton, chairman of the highway committee and acting highway commissioner.

A Verse for Today

"I HOLD HIM HIGH"

"I hold him high" the young lad said, Speaking of one who had achieved, And then joined the heroic dead... An epitaph that the bereaved Can cherish... for what other phrase Is so replete with loving praise? Man cannot, when he comes to die, Desire a greater monument Than Youth, who knew his good intent, Saying of him, "I hold him high!" (Copyright, 1939) children of his own to share his fortune the halls of the Institute of Technology at Northwestern University will echo with the clattering footsteps of many young men down through the generations who will partake of the opportunity he is making for them and thrive upon the goodness of human heart that gave them the necessary start at the right time.

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—in the wake of German conquests arise questions as to how long that country can continue its enormous expansion without collapse. Nobody knows the answer. Nor can anybody compute.

The capture of $80,000,000 of Czech gold is a boon to Germany just now. Short term notes issued to pay the costs of mobilization and building of the Siegfried Line last Autumn are falling due at the rate of 500,000,000 marks a month. Every little bit, especially of gold, helps.

It is an axiom of nations that a country never becomes insolvent. Often it cannot pay its foreign debts, cannot feed its people well, cannot longer finance armaments.

But it can exist, nevertheless.

To finance a staggering arms program, Germany has resorted to extraordinary expedients both in her internal affairs and in her external financing. Hjalmar Schacht, former economic minister, once was asked what he would do when the effect of his latest financial sleight-of-hand wore off. Reputedly he replied:

"We will do something else that is expedient."

Troubles Pile Up From every direction financial and trade troubles of the Reich appear to increase, yet U. S. officials returning from there say no financial collapse is in prospect.

There is no way of determining just how large is the annual German expenditure and debt. Germany has kept its budget secret since 1935. From Department of Commerce reports, the studies of British and American writers in Germany, and other available sources it is possible to estimate that the annual expenditures of the government are 30 billion marks. An estimated one-half is for the military. Marks are valued at about 40 cents.

The 1935 budget, the last published, showed ordinary receipts of 7,805,000,000 marks and ordinary expenditures totaling 8,221,000,000 marks, leaving a prospective deficit of 400,000,000. Of the ordinary expenditures, war charges were listed at 482,000,000 marks. An unexplained item of 2,931,000,000 marks may have hidden other military or semi-military expenditures.

The 1938 or 1939 "ordinary budget" in Germany undoubtedly has climbed higher than the 8,221,000,000 marks of 1935. Economists concede it may have doubled. That still leaves approximately 15 billion marks ($50,000,000) for arms and war expenditures. As an example of where the money went in 1938, more than a million men were mobilized before "Munich" last fall, and 500,000 were employed on the Siegfried line, calling for an enormous expenditure.

As to revenue, the same sources indicate that during 1938 German tax income totaled 17,000,000,000 marks. Loans raised an additional 7,932,000,000 marks. Unemployment insurance premiums raised 1,800,000,000 marks and only 200,000,000 was paid out. (Germany has few idle.) The "fight tax" of 25 per cent of an emigrant's fortune and payment of quarterly portions of the 1,000,000,000-mark penalty imposed on Jews for the Vom Rath assassination meant additional revenue. That still falls four or five billion marks short of a balanced budget.

Security Issue Sluggish It is certain that Germany is having her trouble raising revenue. Expenses are getting higher. Her export trade is sagging, her imports increasing. The latest 1,500,000,000 mark security issue offered last November did not move as readily as its predecessors.

It is a fair surmise that a new one may be whopped along now during the peak of enthusiasm over the latest conquest. The money can be used.

However, peaceable the Republican assembly may have been in addition, there is one aspect of the G. O. P. status in Wisconsin which still warrants attention from those who are interested in state politics.

It is the organization known as the Republican service men's league, formed a few weeks ago out of the remnants of the Heil for Governor and Wiley for Senator clubs, and one of the problems facing the Republican state central committee when the Madison meeting this week was called.

No plausible explanation for the new Milwaukee group has yet been advanced, but there is plenty of gossip about.

Most frequently heard is the theory that the league was organized to advance the interests of Senator Wiley, who is reported by many Republicans to be looking ambitiously toward the next Republican national convention. There, according to party reports, he hopes to get into the running either for vice president, or for convention keynote.

If that conclusion is accepted, it may be seen that the new political organization would be a handy adjunct next spring when the race for Wisconsin Republican delegates begins. If Wiley can win his own state, he will be in a position to bargain at the convention hall, particularly since so many other states are likely to have presidential favorite sons.

What position Governor Heil may have in the new organization is unknown. The governor himself promised complete cooperation with and support of the official state committee. Reports persist, however, that he would like to continue his spectacular political career next year by trimming another LaFollette, Senator Bob Thine.

Although such reports are still in the rumor stage, Governor Heil fully three weeks ago at a semi-political banquet of proportions in the capital city took the trouble to mention the rumors. All he wants, said he, is to be a good governor of Wisconsin.

Americans spent $647,821,000 on postage in 1938.

THE "STICK UP" CREW

Under the CAPITOL DOME

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison — In republican circles these days the comment is often heard that Governor Julius Heil "is talking too much."

Anyone who is acquainted with Wisconsin's new Republican governor knows that he dislikes the short speech; even in private conferences in his office he launches into extended discussions in which the conferees become auditors whether they like it or not.

At Madison this week, however, came an indication that Governor Heil's speech-making may be valuable in a way some Republican party politicians who have been worried about some of Heil's forensic indiscretions do not yet realize.

Into a Republican rally which hummed with dissension Governor Heil came to make a rousing speech which sent even the leading demagogues away satisfied. The homely, catchy quality of the man's speakings, if Wiley can win his own party followers today as it was with the voters in country and city on the stump last fall.

Governor Heil has the common touch which is one of the most important attributes of a political life. His listeners instinctively warm to the man, although afterward they may be amused at his platitudes, his thoroughly unconventional and untrained methods of expression, and his language.

Mystery Still However, peaceable the Republican assembly may have been in addition, there is one aspect of the G. O. P. status in Wisconsin which still warrants attention from those who are interested in state politics.

It is the organization known as the Republican service men's league, formed a few weeks ago out of the remnants of the Heil for Governor and Wiley for Senator clubs, and one of the problems facing the Republican state central committee when the Madison meeting this week was called.

No plausible explanation for the new Milwaukee group has yet been advanced, but there is plenty of gossip about.

Most frequently heard is the theory that the league was organized to advance the interests of Senator Wiley, who is reported by many Republicans to be looking ambitiously toward the next Republican national convention. There, according to party reports, he hopes to get into the running either for vice president, or for convention keynote.

If that conclusion is accepted, it may be seen that the new political organization would be a handy adjunct next spring when the race for Wisconsin Republican delegates begins. If Wiley can win his own state, he will be in a position to bargain at the convention hall, particularly since so many other states are likely to have presidential favorite sons.

What position Governor Heil may have in the new organization is unknown. The governor himself promised complete cooperation with and support of the official state committee. Reports persist, however, that he would like to continue his spectacular political career next year by trimming another LaFollette, Senator Bob Thine.

Although such reports are still in the rumor stage, Governor Heil fully three weeks ago at a semi-political banquet of proportions in the capital city took the trouble to mention the rumors. All he wants, said he, is to be a good governor of Wisconsin.

Personal Health Talks

CALORIES ARE CALORIES

In an article on Sugar published here, appropriately, St. Valentine's day, the chucklehead responsible for this column, despite his years of experience as an interpreter of technical medical language for the casual reader, chalked up another bad miss. It now appears that thru-out the Sugar article Old Chucklehead referred to sugar as "cane sugar" and never once mentioned beet sugar. So now a number of readers, not all engaged in the sugar beet or beet sugar industry, wonder, come sincerely and sarcastically, whether I am allergic to beet sugar or am I just a whimsical old lady....

Come, come, now it is not quite fair to seize upon an obvious slip like that and begin calling a fellow names for it. I'd rather take full blame than search my own files for the evidence, but I know I have referred more than once to the identity of beet sugar and cane sugar. Either or both being the same sugar, namely, sucrose. It makes no difference whether it grows in beets, grasses, trees or fruits. Sucrose constitutes about half the solid matter of pineapples and of some roots such as carrots, but the chief commercial sources of sucrose are sugar beets, sugar cane, sorghum canes or grasses, the sugar palm, the sugar maple. About one-fourth of the total United States sugar consumption is beet sugar grown and processed within the continental limits of the United States. The per capita consumption of sugar has increased from 68 pounds a year in 1901 to 109 pounds a year in 1926. It is probably still higher today.

The fuel value of sugar is 1600 calories per pound. What proportion of the per capita totals is actually ingested and what proportion is wasted or fed to animals in one way or another is problematic. Prof. Sherman (Chemistry of Food and Nutrition and Food Products, Macmillan) observes that if the per capita consumption of sugar is 100 pounds a year, the average person must derive about one-fourth of the daily energy requirement from sugar—that is, 500 of the 2,000 per capita calories, and that the intake of protein, phosphorus, calcium, iron and vitamins is proportionately diminished. In the light of newer knowledge of nutrition we cannot assume that the ordinary dietary of the people in the United States furnishes such an abundance of these elements that the large sugar consumption is of no consequence. Sherman suggests that it would be an improvement to reduce sugar consumption and get the needed energy by increased consumption of other foods.

A teaspoonful of sugar yields approximately 30 calories, and so does a lump of sugar.

The sugar in the sugar bowl is nearly pure sucrose and the same in taste, digestibility and nutritive value whether it is cane sugar or beet sugar.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS Key: Are Coming Up Keep your shirt on and hold your horses, friends. The "Keys to Life" will be ready any day now, and you'll not regret waiting for it. Just think how to stay young—or if you're a bit stale how to rejuvenate, all in a vest pocket manual for twenty-five cents and stamped envelope bearing your address. (O! Doc Brady)

Raw Meat What is the result of eating meat, nearly raw, grilled just slightly. I eat it this way and I imagine I feel more energy and less sort of droopy when I do. (L. C.)

Answer—It is all right if you prefer it raw or rare, provided the meat is not "measly"—beef may contain the larva to tapeworm, which thoro cooking destroys; pork or ham may contain the larva of trichina, which in man is a serious disease, and thoro cooking destroys that. (Copyright, 1939)

EARLY DAY OLEOMARGARINE Editor Post-Crescent — Referring to your editorial in the issue of March 13, 1939, relative to Oleomargarine, the Federal law has always been justifiable.

To protect the dairy industry the Federal Government placed a tax on it certified by a revenue stamp as oleo, has, though only a quarter of one cent on a pound of the uncolored, but ten cents on that colored in imitation of yellow butter. The cost price of oleomargarine was said then to be from five to ten cents a pound. Made principally in the large slaughtering houses of clean fatty scraps. As clean as butter, but not as digestible as butter. And to determine the actual food value, rats were experimentally fed in comparisons. Those receiving the butter were reported to pass through the test in a more healthful condition than the others apparently.

The oleomargarine selling at nearly the butter price, but the temperature given in cooking increased its digestibility, which butter did not require, it in nature being digestible.

The Federal revenue stamp gave evidence when sold in its original package what it actually was, and the tax so small was no hindrance in its sale. And those wanting to know where to get it, but was not always sold in this original package.

Various plans were practiced in the sale of oleomargarine to pass it on the market and lobbyists were before every congressional session to loosen the restricting sale effects, which was to say, it would not sell readily on its own merits.

Cotton seed oil became one of its ingredients, not as digestible as milk butter fat and the beef industry wanted to dispose of its tallow also.

It was probably along in the thirties, a plan was developed in the cheese making to pass the cows' milk through the cream separator to remove the butter fat, substituting a cheaper and less digestible fat in the cheese, but selling it as though normal milk cheese. Which took some time to overcome this fraudulent custom by legislation.

Becoming disgusted with all the numerous fraudulent customs and impositions on the dairy industry, the state legislature voted such a high tax on substituting dairy products, the Supreme Court ruled it unconstitutional as it truly was. But someone is almost continually endeavoring to realize something unjustly out of or through the dairy business, and if the south wishes to market its cotton seed there can be no objections if honestly offered on the market. There will be no necessity for boycotting.

V. F. W. District Conference Will Be Held Sunday

More Than 300 Expected To Attend District Event in City

Appleton will be the meeting place tomorrow for more than 300 members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and auxiliary of the Eighth district.

The spring conference will be held tomorrow, with afternoon degree team competition and an evening speech by Paul H. Cramp, Milwaukee, state department commander, as the most important events.

Conference-goers will register in the morning at the Conway hotel. The men will meet at city hall at 1 o'clock in the afternoon for two hours of degree team competition. Three teams, Harvey Pierre post, Appleton, Clarence Noble post, Green Bay, and Eleven Gold Star post, Two Rivers, have entered, Carl Reifel, Appleton commander, said today.

The teams will compete for the district prize known as the Macco trophy, presented by John Macco, Green Bay, eighth district commander.

Macco to Preside

Macco will preside at the evening banquet at Eagle hall at which Cramp will be the speaker. The banquet will start at 6:30. Following the program, the veterans and their wives will enjoy dancing. Al Johlin has been in charge of conference arrangements.

Mrs. Katherine Lysaker, La Crosse, department president of the auxiliary, will be present, as well as Mrs. Freda James, Milwaukee, national guard and past department president; Mrs. Katherine Sloan, Oshkosh, department senior vice president; Mrs. Anna Herdina, Milwaukee, department junior vice president; and Mrs. Elizabeth Deharsh, Green Bay, department guard.

Mrs. Walter Bogan, local president, will conduct the meeting of the auxiliary in the afternoon at Eagle hall, and Mrs. Howard Van Ooyen will receive women guests at Conway hotel in the morning. The women will join the men for the dinner in the evening at Eagle hall. Mrs. Max Buske is chairman of the women's arrangements committee and the reception committee includes Mrs. John Hoelzer and Mrs. Fred Volkman.

Order of Deaths Are Predicted by New Orleans Pair

New Orleans—(P)—McGuin Carlisle, 73, and his wife, Adelaide, would have been married 50 years this June. He interpreted the visible world for her, she took part in it for him. He was paralyzed, she was blind.

At the parties of their children and grandchildren he sat and watched and told her what was happening. She played in the games for him.

They used to say they never worried over the chance death might separate them. They were sure they'd die together, she first, he immediately afterwards.

Yesterday doctors gave up all hope for him. He had been in a coma several days. She was ill, too, but doctors didn't consider her case serious. In the afternoon she said she knew "he was going." She died at 5:10 p. m. He died an hour later.

New Committee to Probe Workings of Valley Milk Marts

Effectiveness of Milk Control Act Is Questioned

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau Madison—The newly-created legislative committee to investigate the state department of agriculture and markets will examine the workings of the regulated fluid milk markets in the Fox river valley, Assemblyman Nicholas Bichler of Belgium (D), assembly farm spokesman and leading member of the investigating committee has announced here today.

The committee will also study "existing fluid milk market conditions" in other parts of the state as the result of the recent slash in producers' prices caused by the 2 cent reduction in the Milwaukee fluid milk market last week, he said.

At the same time evidence increased that the faith of Wisconsin agriculture in the efficacy of state price control through the administration of urban markets is waning.

The milk control act was put on the statute books several years ago at the instance of organized farmers. It was renewed after a bitter fight in 1937. Recently, however, public statements from farmers and their leaders have indicated a questioning attitude toward the effectiveness of the device for pegging prices.

Probable Reasons

Two probable reasons for the apparently waning support of such methods of bolstering the dairy market can be found in the fact that the fluid milk control law affects only a small portion of the milk produced on Wisconsin farms, and the fact that it has no effect whatever on two other parts of the dairy industry which are even more important than the urban fluid milk, butter, and cheese.

The fluid milk control law affects only those farmers in the areas of the urban controlled markets. Other milk is sold to condenseries, cheese factories and creameries at prices far below those commanded by those producers who sell to the city.

Farmers at the Wisconsin Dairy-men's convention a few days ago expressed the belief that legislative price-fixing cannot alter the law of supply and demand.

Charles L. Hill, who was a commissioner in the department of agriculture and markets several years ago was the first man to be charged with the duty of administering the control law, said he was doubtful of the effectiveness of price control as a solution to the Wisconsin dairy problem.

"Looking at the supplies of dairy goods, cotton, wheat and corn that have piled up for forced down prices, the farmer said, 'I am convinced that you cannot repeal the law of supply and demand.'"

Said Richard Brackett of Dunn county, president of the dairy-men's organization: "Even though the milk control law helped the shipper for a while, it should now be repealed. When the price got beyond what the consumer would pay, sales dropped."

Drives Without Permit: Pays Fine of $10. Costs

William Swinton, route 3, New London, pleaded guilty of operating a car without a driver's license and was fined $10 and costs when he was arraigned before Judge Thomas H. Ryan in municipal court this morning. County police made the arrest.

Crushes Foot

M. W. Mossholder, a farmer living on Highway 47 just north of Appleton, crushed bones in his foot when he fell 15 feet from a ladder Tuesday. He was repairing a barn door when he fell. He will be confined to his home for several weeks.

Cosmetics Make It Difficult To Tell if Woman Is Healthy

Indianapolis—(P)—Lipstick and fingernail polish make it hard for doctors to tell whether modern women are undernourished, says Dr. Charles C. Higgins of Cleveland.

Dr. Higgins told the midwest conference of the American college of surgeons, which ended a three-day meeting here last night, that a physician used to be able to determine just by looking at a woman whether she was getting enough vitamins.

Nowadays, he said, painted lips and fingernails cause women to appear healthy whether they are or not—and the doctor has to take a blood test to find the truth.

"Although diet fads are usually harmful because the foods included are commonly too limited and malnutrition results," Dr. Higgins said, "it is sensible and beneficial to exercise reasonable control over your diet."

Dr. Frank E. Adair of New York said that cancer could be cured and that the number of cancer deaths could be cut in half in one generation if everybody heeded the disease warning signals.

No More Snow-Suits and Galoshes; Spring Is Here

Spring arrived on Tuesday, and fast on its heels came summer. With the temperature close to 70, out came marbles and jumping ropes and tennis rackets, several weeks ahead of schedule. These pictures, taken at various school grounds yesterday, give evidence of the warm weather pastimes joyfully indulged in by the city's young people. The marble enthusiasts at the upper left are, left to right, John Engles, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Engles, 1209 N. Oneida street; Richard Reinke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Reinke, 908 N. Morrison street; and Abraham Nadel, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Nadel, 214 E. Hancock street. The picture was taken at the Columbus school.

The water fountain at the Washington school was a popular spot during recess time. A long line of children were waiting their turn at it when the picture at the upper right was taken. The three girls in the foreground are, left to right, Joan Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Miller, 1338 W. Harris street; Elaine Giese, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Giese, 505 N. Badger avenue; and Juanita Gill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Gill, 705 N. Richmond street.

Comfortable in shorts, Lois Schultz and Ethel Rademacher had their first tennis game of the season Friday at the Appleton High school courts. Miss Schultz, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Schultz, 723 W. Wisconsin avenue, is at the left, and Miss Rademacher, daughter of Mrs. Elvira Rademacher, 717 S. Fairview street, is at the right. At the Lawrence college campus the photographer found the three girls at the lower left sunning themselves on a stone wall. Left to right, they are Miss Barbara Plank, Manitowish, Miss Katherine Young, Appleton, and Miss Betty Gallup, Elmhurst, Ill. (Post-Crescent Photos)

General Motors to Refuse to Bargain With 2 Committees

Detroit—(P)—A General Motors spokesman said today the corporation would refuse to negotiate with the United Automobile Workers union in any G. M. division where the CIO and independent factions of the U. A. W. A. set up rival committees which claim representation.

This policy will continue, the spokesman said, until a determination is reached on which U. A. W. A. faction is the official union.

A notice posted in the corporation's Chevrolet division at Flint, Mich., stated:

"We are now being asked to deal with two distinct sets of committees and two shop committees to represent the U. A. W. A. within our factory. This, of course, is impossible. Any employee may present a grievance to his foreman and we will make every effort to arrive at a satisfactory understanding."

The Chevrolet management said a CIO-recognized local union and a local affiliated with Homer Martin's independent U. A. W. A. each insisted on having 25 committee-men present for collective bargaining.

Hollywood Dancer Is Asked $15,000 in Suit

Los Angeles—(P)—Vivian Coe, dancer in a Hollywood night club, filed suit for $15,000 damages in superior court here today against Clifford Henderson, sports promoter, charging he struck her.

The complaint states Henderson struck the dancer "with his clenched fist and called her vile and opprobrious names" outside of the stage door of the Earl Carroll theater and cafe March 5.

The city attorney recently refused to issue a criminal complaint against Henderson. At that time the promoter referred to Miss Coe's charges as "cheap publicity."

'Stop Hitler' Parade Is Held in New York

New York—(P)—Marching thousands demonstrated today in a big "stop Hitler" parade, sponsored by the American Council to Combat Nazi Invasion.

The paraders carried placards reading "stop Hitler now," "restore democratic Czechoslovakia" and "strong unions are a safeguard of democracy."

The demonstrators marched toward Columbus circle where Mayor La Guardia, Rabbi Stephen S. Wise and other speakers were to address a mass meeting.

Fuehrer Applauds U. S. Dance Team in Berlin

Berlin—(P)—Reichsfuehrer Hitler, seeking relaxation, was disclosed today to have applauded the American dance team of Eddie LaValle and Mackay at the Intercontinental vaudeville ball.

The fuhrer was accompanied by Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, his propaganda minister, but their presence was not made known to the audience and the dancers did not meet them.

Better Housing and Home Show Crowds Expected to Set Mark

With last year's attendance mark of 5,000 tottering, the Better Housing and Home Show sponsored at Armory G by the Knights of Pythias held its first afternoon opening today and was expected to draw its biggest one-night crowd this evening.

The show will continue tomorrow afternoon, closing tomorrow evening. A crowd estimated at 1,200 swarmed through the armory last night, inspecting the displays of new building materials and supplies, household equipment, and other products designed to make better and more comfortable living accommodations for people of Appleton and vicinity.

Supreme spring weather lent a helping hand to the show which opened Wednesday night. The balmy temperatures encouraged people to visit Armory G. and see what is in store for the 1939 home builder or remodeler.

Officials of the Knights of Pythias predicted today the show will prove a boon to the building industry in this area and reported that interest in what is being exhibited at the armory is the most vigorous since the event was introduced here.

Besides displays and demonstrations of building products and home equipment, the show offers entertainment and games.

Thirty-booths, all of them attractive and complete, have been erected on the armory floor and attendants are ready to give any information requested.

Cupboards, heating units, radios, washing machines, roofing, refrigerators, insulation, plumbing fixtures, paints, and hardware utensils are among the articles on display.

'Spike' Slayer Won't Get Another Reprieve

Bellefonte, Pa.—(P)—The electric chair in black Rockview penitentiary beckoned with finality today to 27-year-old Roy Lockard, doomed 15 times before but reprieved on each occasion.

Announcing his refusal to intervene again, Governor Arthur H. James said yesterday "there is nothing else for us to do." He ordered the execution to "go ahead as scheduled on Monday morning."

Lockard, a former Altoona, Pa., WPA worker, was convicted in 1935 of the "spike" slaying of three-year-old Matthew "Sonny" Karmendi, whose mother, Margaret, was Lockard's sweetheart. The state charged they killed the boy because he "tattled" about their dates. Mrs. Karmendi, wife of an Altoona silk mill worker, is serving a prison term.

Labor Union Leaders To Meet in New York

Washington—(P)—American Federation of Labor and CIO negotiators are scheduled to meet in New York March 30 for another effort to comply with President Roosevelt's request that labor's civil war be brought to an end.

When the conferees broke up a seven-hour session here yesterday, they were in agreement on only one proposition—to meet again.

15 French Workers Die In Avalanche: 35 Saved

Toulouse, France—(P)—Fifteen of 30 workmen caught in an avalanche on the banks of Lake Issar in the Pyrenees foothills were reported today to have perished. Reports from rescue squads told of the rescue of 35.

It Is Said--

A transient and a loaf of bread provided this "believe it or not" story in Appleton today.

A postal employee was at home yesterday when a tramp came to the door asking for food. The traveler told a story of having been a cook on a steamship and of earning misfortune. The postal employee visited with him for awhile, then gave him a loaf of freshly baked bread and a dime.

This morning a package was found in the post office lobby, apparently left there last night. It was brought behind the cage and the employee who had met with the transient yesterday recognized the wrapping.

It was the loaf of bread he had kindly given away.

It might be said that the traveler had no knowledge that his benefactor worked at the post office.

Mercury Forgets Time of Year and Reaches 67 Today

Week's Warm Wave Expected to Hit Peak This Afternoon

Sun hungry people of Appleton and vicinity, a little disbelieving over spring's unexpected favors, watched the mercury climb up again today into heights seldom seen at this time of year.

The thermometer, which has been giving the higher numbers a workout all week, reached 67 degrees at 12:30 this afternoon. Yesterday's high was 68, recorded at 2:30, and it appeared likely that this mark would be exceeded some time today.

The lowest reading of the 24-hour period ended at 9 o'clock this morning was 38, according to the Wisconsin Michigan Power company plant. This minimum was recorded at 4:30 this morning.

Cloudy and unsettled tonight and tomorrow is the weatherman's forecast for this area. Temperatures will be cooler tomorrow and Monday.

When Saturday shoppers returned to their parked cars today, they found the temperature inside as stuffy and hot as though it were mid-July. Youths walked along streets wearing only sweaters. Spying a robin was no longer worth mentioning. Snow and ice looked dirty and sick and out-of-date.

People who have had recent affairs with the flu felt their strength returning with the sun's glow. Youngsters began thinking prematurely of swimming and families planned weekend drives.

Court Refuses Order For Process Papers

Los Angeles—(P)—Attorneys for Mrs. Rhoda Tanner Doubleday, a socialite widow, yesterday were denied a court order authorizing process servers to enter forcibly the Beverly Hills home of Harold F. McCormick, multi-millionaire Chicagoan.

The attorneys sought a deposition from McCormick in a $350,000 damage suit of Mrs. Doubleday against him and others, charging conspiracy to release privileged records of her stay in the Good Samaritan hospital here in August, 1932.

Mrs. Doubleday asserted release of the records forced her into an unfavorable settlement in her pending $1,500,000 breach-of-promise suit against McCormick. (It was reported at that time the suit had been settled for $65,000).

Dr. Jack Frick, McCormick's physician, testified in superior court that his patient was convalescing from a serious heart ailment and that any excitement at present might endanger McCormick's life.

The hospital and its officials are other defendants in the action.

Youth Is Killed When Car Skids, Overturns

Thomas Robertson, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Robertson, Wauwatosa, was killed yesterday in an accident in which four other Wauwatosa high school boys were injured on the Blue Mound road outside Milwaukee. Robertson's father is associated with J. E. Robertson and company, heating and ventilating contractors on Appleton's new senior high school.

The accident occurred when Howard Dietrich, 16, Wauwatosa, driver of the machine, lost control in attempting to pass another car. His automobile skidded and turned over four times into a marsh.

Surviving Robertson are the parents and a brother, Richard, 12.

Child Film Actress' Parents Sued Again

Los Angeles—(P)—A new suit seeking $700,000 from parents of Shirley Temple, child film actress, was filed today by Jack Hays, motion picture producer, charging they broke a contract under which he was to train and develop Shirley for a film career.

The suit is similar to two others for $500,000 each by Hays which have been dismissed in the last two years.

Schroeder Funeral

Funeral services for John Schroeder, 92, town of Ellington, were held yesterday afternoon at Wichmann Funeral home and at Emmanuel Evangelical church with the Rev. G. H. Blum and the Rev. C. M. Schendel in charge. Burial was in the Greenville town cemetery.

Bearers were Walter and Harold Schroeder, Marvin, Weldon, and Wilmer Maves, and Harold Sylvester.

CYO Quintets to Play Final Games At St. Mary's Gym

Shamrocks to Oppose St. John's; Zephyrs Play Saints Sunday

C. Y. O. League Standings

W. L. St. Patrick's 7 0 St. Mary's 5 2 St. Margaret-Mary 2 6 St. John's 1 7

Menasha—Basketball teams of the Twin City Catholic parishes will close the C. Y. O. league season Sunday afternoon at St. Mary's gymnasium with the league-leading St. Patrick's team opposing St. John's and the St. Mary's team meeting St. Margaret Mary of Neenah.

The Shamrocks need a victory to clinch the league championship Sunday afternoon. They are out in front with seven straight victories but have a postponed game with St. Mary parish. If the St. John team could trip the Shamrocks, the former Zephyrs could gain a tie for first place by beating the Neenah Saints and then winning the postponed game with the Shamrocks.

The St. John team is at the bottom of the Twin City league with only one victory in eight starts but they have played improved basketball in recent games. Their season record is three victories against 11 defeats while the Shamrocks have a season record of 11 wins and one defeat. The Shamrocks and the Polish lads are scheduled to clash at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

At the 7:30 Wednesday evening, the former Zephyrs of St. Mary parish will play the St. Margaret Mary team of Neenah at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon. The former Zephyrs already have clinched second place in the final league standings but a victory over the Neenah team plus a defeat for the Shamrocks would give the St. Mary squad a chance to tie for the league title.

The St. Peter's team has clinched the Oshkosh division championship with eight victories and one defeat. A championship play-off between the Oshkosh and Twin City champions has been discussed tentatively but final arrangements have not been completed.

Wrestling Card Bouts are Drawn

Show Will be Held at Armory Next Wednesday Evening

Menasha—The complete card for the professional wrestling show at S. A. Cook armory next Wednesday night has been announced by William Erickson, promoter. The feature bout will pit Sam Pesek, Polish grappler from Omaha, against the former cowboy, Tex Hager. Pesek also will receive a purse and gifts at the mat show.

The main supporting bout will bring two old favorites, both Wisconsin grapplers, Tarzan Krause, Milwaukee deaf-mute, will oppose Milt Olsen of Racine. Krause has appeared at S. A. Cook armory only once this season while Olsen appeared at the armory last year. They will go two out of three falls with an hour time limit.

The opening bout will feature Scotty Williams, welterweight champion from Louisville, Ky., against Torchy Smith of Honolulu in an overweight bout. Smith weighs around 175 pounds but Williams is somewhat of a toughie, and the added weight probably will make no difference in his work. Their bout will be one fall, with a 30-minute time limit. The show will start at 8:30.

Handler Will Attend Valley Loop Meeting

Neenah—William Handler, manager of the Neenah baseball team, will attend a meeting of the Fox River Valley league Sunday at Little Chute. The league schedule will be drawn and umpires selected. The league this season will be composed of 10 teams, Neenah, Menasha, Appleton, Little Chute, Kaukauna, Green Bay, Oshkosh, Manitowish, Kimberly and New London.

Neenah Personals

Neenah—Mr. Arthur Melke and daughter, Jean, Margorie Meyer, Joan Rogers, Pearl Kelten and Betty Jane Smith were among those who attended the basketball tournament at Madison Thursday evening.

SOLOIST

Menasha—Edward Dix, Jr., above, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Dix, 545 First street, will appear as soloist at the Wisconsin Symphony orchestra concert program Wednesday evening, April 19, in the auditorium of the Menasha High school. The Service Circle of the Neenah-Menasha Kings Daughters will sponsor the program. Mr. Dix is instructor in the Conservatory of Music at Lawrence college and organist for Menasha Trinity Lutheran church.

Edward Dix, Jr., to Appear as Soloist On Concert Program

Menasha—Edward Dix, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Dix, 545 First street, who is instructor and pianist at the Lawrence college Conservatory of Music, Appleton, will appear as soloist with the Wisconsin Symphony orchestra on its concert program Wednesday evening, April 19, at the Menasha High school auditorium under the auspices of the Service Circle of the Kings Daughters of Neenah and Menasha.

Mr. Dix who was born in Menasha and a graduate of Menasha High school, and organist for Trinity Lutheran church, will play the second concerto for piano and orchestra by Franz Liszt.

The concerto which is usually heard through the popular E flat major concerto, is considered a flatter work. Mr. Dix plays with fine virtuosity and verve and his appearance on this occasion will add to the striking program now arranged by Dr. Sigfried Prager, conductor of the 70-piece orchestra.

The finance committee of the Service Circle, Mrs. O. T. Thompson, chairman, is in charge of the ticket sales.

Draheims Defeat News 32 to 30 in Close Cage Tilt

League Leaders Cinch Win in Final Seconds of Play

Neenah—Two nip and tuck battles featured Neenah Basketball league games last night at Roosevelt school gymnasium, the league-leading Draheims scoring a 32 to 30 victory over the News-Times and Hewitt Machines edging out a 32 to 29 win over the Neenah Merchants in an overtime.

With only seconds remaining, Fetters of the News-Times tied the score, 30-all, but Rabadieu of the Draheims uncorked a long shot from midcourt just as the gun sounded to clinch the victory for the Draheims. The Draheims held a 19 to 16 margin at halftime.

Schmidt paced Draheims in scoring, counting 11 points on three baskets and five free throws. Rabadieu snuck 10 points on five buckets. Krueger and Fetters shared honors for the News-Times, each counting 11 points on five baskets and a free throw.

With the score deadlocked, 24-all, as the Hewitts and Merchants went into the overtime period, McCana of the Machines dropped in three baskets to clinch the victory for the Hewitts. He also paced the winners with 12 points on five baskets and two free throws. Cheslock, starred for the Merchants, counting 10 points on four buckets and two gift shots.

Box scores:
Draheims—Schmidt 11, Fetters 11, Rabadieu 10, Krueger 10, McCana 10, Cheslock 10, Hewitts—Fetters 11, Schmidt 11, Krueger 10, Cheslock 10, Hewitts 10, Merchants—Schmidt 11, Fetters 11, Rabadieu 10, Krueger 10, McCana 10, Cheslock 10, Hewitts 10, Merchants 10.

Outlines Youth Hostel Movement At Club Meeting

Neenah—Emphasizing that the youth hostel movement was a factor in world peace since through understanding the youth of other countries, young people are not so ready to take up arms against each other, Mrs. G. R. Wettengel, Appleton, presented an illustrated lecture on American Youth Hostel movement Friday evening at the Friday Nighters meeting in the Twin City Y. W. C. A.

Mrs. Wettengel who has lived in about 25 youth hostels in Europe, told her audience that Mr. and Mrs. Monroe Smith brought the plan to America in 1934. In 1938, there were 184 youth hostels in America. A year ago there were none in northern Illinois and southern Wisconsin last October there were 27. Mrs. Wettengel declared to indicate the rapidity of the movement in this country.

The Fox River Valley cities are in what is known as the Western Great Lakes area, one of the 12 regions into which United States is divided in the American Youth Hostel movement. While hostels in Europe are limited in membership those under 25 years of age unless one is a chaperone, there has been no age limit

Menasha Boasts Best Traffic Record in County This Year

Menasha—The hazard of an automobile accident is less in Menasha than in any other city in Winnebago county, according to an accident spot map in the county highway office at the courthouse, Oshkosh.

Nenah, recently considered the safest place in the county, isn't far behind Menasha as to the total number of accidents since Jan. 1, the former having 15 and the latter having 6 accident marks against their records. Oshkosh, on the other hand, is the most hazardous, having 79 accidents.

As far as the towns are concerned, the town of Oshkosh is the most hazardous, the map showing a total of 13 accidents having occurred in that township since Jan. 1, three of which resulted in personal injury as well as property damage.

The towns of Neopukun, Poygan, Rushford, Utica, Winchester and Wolf River have the best records, each being without an accident this year. The villages of Omro and Winneconne have gone without a single mishap on the highways.

The records of other towns are: Algoma 3, Black Wolf 3, Clekimi 3, Menasha 7, Nenah 1, Nektomi 1, Omro 2, Winneconne 1 and Vinland 1.

The statistics are kept by Floyd L. Wright of the County Safe Drivers league.

Two Old Age Pension Proposals Scored at Committee Hearing

Washington—(U)—Two old age pension plans now before congress were described as "fantastic" and disastrous to national economy before a congressional committee today.

Dr. Frederic Dewhurst, New York, an economist associated with the 20th Century fund, testifying at the house ways and means committee hearing, said both plans would impose extremely heavy tax burdens upon the people and small corporations.

"The adoption of these bills would result in a substantial increase in unemployment," Dewhurst said.

"The payment of these pensions would involve a fantastic impossible burden on our economy."

One of the proposed plans would provide monthly pensions of $50, the other up to $200. The money would be raised through gross income or transaction taxes.

Dewhurst said the proposed 2 percent transaction tax would be "pyramided many times and passed on to the consumer in the form of higher prices."

"The effect of the tax would be widespread failure of small business establishments," the witness said.

"The result would be a drastic and arbitrary dislocation of the present industrial structure."

Horse That Likes Light Is Nuisance to Owner

Ahlene, Tex. — (U)—The electric light bills of Rex A. Smith of Ahlene are mounting because of his polo mare, Punkin.

Punkin suddenly took a liking to bright lights and turns them on by herself. The lights are the kind with a cord-pull switch and Punkin learned that by jerking the cord with her teeth she gets illumination.

Frequently Smith has awakened in the night to discover the stable lights ablaze. He plans to install a different type of switch to remedy the situation.

Menasha Girl in Cast Of College Production

South Bend, Ind. — Miss Patti Fieweger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray J. Fieweger, of 419 N. Myrtle street, Menasha, is a member of the group of students at Saint Mary's college, Notre Dame, which is giving a performance of "Everyman" at the college on Sunday evening.

Shooting Stars Plan Vespers at Twin City YWCA

Club Members to Present Music and Reading Sunday Afternoon

Nenah—The Girl Reserves March vespers program will be held at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon in the Twin City Y. W. C. A. with the Shooting Star club acting as host. Music and readings will be presented by club members and tea is to be served at 5 o'clock. The monthly Girl Reserve vespers are conducted for all clubs with a different club in charge of the program and tea each month. Miss Marjorie Thompson and Miss Margaret Webster are advisers of the club.

Tentative engagements have been received by Miss Evelyn Seedorf, Girl Reserve secretary, for performances of "The Intruder," a 1-act play now in rehearsal by a cast from the Drama and Broadcast Dabblers club. The play is particularly adaptable to church groups.

The cast includes Gladys Fischer, Norman Michie, June Wolthuis, June Moran, Bob Huebner, Laureale Ward, Bob Stecker, Ed Lowe and Mike Tembelus. Miss Seedorf is director of the play. A rehearsal will be held from 1 to 6 o'clock this afternoon.

Radio Broadcast

The radio broadcast of the "Y" over station WBBY at 4 o'clock Monday afternoon will have in the cast Catherine Grunski, Arlen Parker, June Moran, Elmyra Barshaw, Dorothy Patterson and Geneva Eberhardt. The theme introduces a Girl Reserve club at the Cragmont boarding school which Bees and Joyce attend. Miss Seedorf is script writer, producer and announcer for all broadcasts. The last rehearsal for Monday's program will be at 5:30 Sunday.

Seventy-six seventh and eighth grade Girl Reserves crowded into the "Y" living room Friday to see motion pictures of Alaska and Hawaii which were taken by S. F. Shattuck. Carl Oberreich operated the projector.

Deb-U-Trip club members are rehearsing the traditional "Consecration of Sir Galahad" which is to be presented by the senior Girl Reserves Sunday, April 2, at St. Paul's English Lutheran church. Catherine Sparks and Vivian Davis are advisers for the club.

Unearth Ancient Indian Pithouses In Southern Texas

Alpine, Tex. — Age-old secrets of the Patarbutays, a primitive tribe of Indians which farmed in the Rio Grande valley when Cabeza de Vaca wandered over the Southwest, will be revealed in the excavation of ancient Indian pithouses near Presidio, Tex.

Information on the tribe's culture will be sought in an archaeological project under sponsorship of the School of American Research of Santa Fe, N. M., and Sul Ross State College in Alpine. Digging will be continued for two to three months under the leadership of J. Charles Kelley, curator of archaeology at Sul Ross, who recently discovered the two pithouses.

Kelley believes the area contains much valuable knowledge of the former occupants, whose descendants still live in mixed strains among the Mexican population of Presidio.

Bones of an infant, shell beads, clay blowers, prepared sections of pigment, and pottery shards are among the artifacts already uncovered in the pithouses—prehistoric lodges partly underground and roofed with beams and earth. The houses probably were dug with pointed sticks and flat stones and the earth carried away in baskets. Stone axes were used in cutting the timbers.

RENAMING CO-OP HEAD

Chicago — (U)—L. H. Hull of Indianapolis was re-elected president yesterday of the National Co-operatives, Inc., business organization of the consumers' cooperative purchasing movement.

The directors elected A. J. Hayes of Superior, Wis., chairman of the board, a newly created office.

LEGAL NOTICES

Wyoming Killer Slays Self After He's Wounded in Bank Holdup; Teller Shot to Death

Powell flat. At his home Durand joked with his amazed parents. Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Durand, respected ranchers.

At that time postmen were seeking Durand high on the slopes of Sawtooth mountain.

Describes Holdup

Bob Nelson, president of the bank said Durand stepped into the bank and said "hello, Nelson," then commanded the four employees and five customers in the bank to "stick up your hands."

"He had a six shooter in his holster and a 30-30 rifle in his hands and his pockets bulged with ammunition," Nelson related.

"I won't kill you if you do what I say but no monkey business," the fugitive said. "Get over here and line up," Nelson quoted Durand as demanding.

The bank president said all nine lined up facing the wall while Durand scooped up between $2,000 and $3,000 into some money bags.

"The intruder then ordered Cashier Maurice Knutson to get over here and open the safe."

"Open it up," Durand demanded again, and playing his bad man role to the hilt, began firing his rifle at the windows and walls of the bank.

When Knutson had trouble opening the vault, Durand said, "Open that up or I'll plug you!"

Knutson complained he couldn't. The time lock was set to release later.

"What the hell," Durand said, "they'll plug me anyway before I get out of here."

Tied 3 Together

"He brought Knutson back out of the vault," Nelson said, "and then he got a rawhide thong out of his pocket and tied three of us together," Nelson said.

Nelson related Durand then said, "come on boys, we're going out," and began tugging on the thong.

"He pushed us over toward the front door for protection. It was kind of exciting," Nelson said.

"All of a sudden," Nelson continued, "bullets started flying, hitting the window and walls behind us."

"Durand's shooting had attracted the citizens of Powell and they ran for their guns. When we came out of the bank they were hiding around the corners, waiting for Durand."

Teller Slain

"Durand started shooting around. Gawthrop, Gawthrop dropped, apparently by a wild bullet, Durand fired wildly but there was nobody in sight to shoot at.

"All Knutson and I could do was stand there, tied with the thongs. Then Durand fell, wounded. He went down with a grunt. Then he started crawling back into the bank. He got back several feet. Then he tugged at the revolver in his holster and pulled out his revolver. He shot himself dead."

Durand was on his hands and knees when he shot himself. "I was right beside Durand when he was first shot. I don't remember what I did after he crawled back in and shot himself, but they tell me I picked up his rifle and ran back and shot him in the head," Nelson said.

Earth May Have Jewels in Cellar

Believe Semi-Precious Stones Lay at 400-Mile Depth

New York — (U)—Perhaps the earth has a "basement" of green semi-precious stone at a depth of about 400 miles.

Discovery of a sharp change in the properties of the earth at that depth is reported in Nature by K. E. Bullen of Auckland, N. Z. The evidence is an increase in electrical conductivity, obtained by prospecting with electric currents sent deep into the earth.

Backing up the electrical evidence, says Mr. Bullen, is the fact that earthquake foci, the subterranean points where the quakes seem to originate, do not go deeper than about 400 miles.

There is also the evidence, he said, of quake "waves." They increase speed about 400 miles down, and the higher rate is apparently due to entry at that point into dense material.

The findings of electricity and seismographs would be explained, Mr. Bullen says, if the earth at 400 miles down is made of olivine. This is a greenish stone, also called chrysolite. Some of the forms are semi-precious. They are sometimes called green garnet.

The 400-mile form, suggests Mr. Bullen, would have to be made of cubic crystals to account for its density. Normally chrysolite crystals are orthorhombic, an irregular form in three planes.

Water and Sewer Project Hopes Revived at Manawa

Manawa — Hopes for a waterworks system and a sewage disposal plant for the village of Manawa were revived here this week when word was received by village officials that the federal government will probably make additional appropriations to the public works administration at Washington.

If the money becomes available, a number of Wisconsin municipalities, including Manawa, will receive government grants on applications made. The information, obtained by District Attorney Paul E. Roman, legal adviser for the village, further reveals that the appropriation may be definitely assured within 60 days.

The local project had been approved all the way along the line but village officers were notified last November, after making every effort to secure appropriation, that the PWA had virtually completed its 1938 program and that the money might never be available.

By a vote of 238 to 37, residents of Manawa voted in favor of constructing a system of waterworks and sewerage here, Oct. 17, 1933, contingent upon receiving a grant from the government amounting to 45 percent of the total cost.

Under provisions of the proposal, only $25,000 of the entire sum of the approximate cost of $130,000 would be general obligation bonds to be paid out of taxes. The remainder, inclusive of the federal grant, would be paid from proceeds of the plant after it was in operation.

Make Book Posters Senior high school students are making book posters as a project in connection with a reading course in senior English. Each poster advertises one book that the individual student has read and wishes others to read. The posters create interest in the books through some illustration, design or caption on the poster, which not only serve as an "attention getter" but also gives the idea of the book. An English III class nominated eight of the posters as representing the best work. One, depicting the book "City Editor," made by Lois Bauer, utilized headlines from daily newspapers in an attractive manner. "The Royal Road to Romance," a travel book poster made by Lola Patton, gives the idea of far away places with a snow-capped mountain and snow-covered lettering.

The poster on the "Charlie Chan Caravan" carries out the idea of Oriental mystery in the use of mock-Chinese letters. Twenty-six posters were made, under the direction of Earl Carl Koch, English instructor.

The high school paper, The Little Wolf, was issued to the students this week, the second publication of the paper this year. It was formally called "The Wolf" but was changed in order to avoid confusion with the senior annual which bears the official title of The Wolf.

The paper is under the direction of Miss Mary Jean Rossmeier, commercial instructor, and Sarah Van Adestine, editor-in-chief. A staff composed of 23 students has been selected to assist with the reporting, writing, stenciling and mimeographing. Various departments are: Athletic news, class news, music, forensics, jokes and a widely read "dirt and gossip" column.

A 4-H club leaders' meeting will be held in the high school gymnasium Wednesday evening commencing at 7:30 P. M. Beverly, state club leader, will be the principal speaker and discussion leader.

A meeting of the Manawa Fish and Game club will be held at the high school gymnasium, Tuesday evening, March 28.

The St. Lawrence Community Grange will confer third and fourth degrees on four new members at the I.O.O.F. hall in Ogdensburg Tuesday evening. The degree work will be followed by a program and lunch.

Gordon Barrington won second place in extempore speaking at the conference contest at Marion Tuesday. Margaret Jensen tied for third place in oratory. Others from Manawa who competed were Ruth Lindsey, Virginia Russell, Muriel Kruse, Lola Patton, Mildred Patri and Irma Sturm. Next Tuesday, a contest will be held at Weyauwega, with representatives from Amherst, Waupaca, Iola, Marion, Weyauwega and Manawa competing. Winners of this contest will be entered in the district event at Stevens Point.

Keith Gehrke, senior forward and a regular for the last three years, was elected honorary captain of the high school basketball team at a dinner tendered the squad by Coach and Mrs. Roy Bloomquist Tuesday evening. Squad members present were Gehrke, Les Miller, Eddie Nolan, Mark Fitzgerald, Len Behnke, Bill Sebald, Bob Yohr, Bruce Brown, Tom Garrity and Bud Kosmerchok.

Senior Play Cast Interprets Life and 'Manners' of 1814 In Gossipy Drama of England

BY ENOLA BRANDT

S PONTANEOUS applause came from an appreciative audience Friday night when the curtains parted to show the setting of the first senior class play to be presented in the auditorium of the new Appleton High school. White colonnades and a fire place contrasted with the rich black of the velvet drops to make a quickly elegant background for "Romances by Emma," a dramatic adaptation by DeWitt Bodeen of Jane Austen's "Emma." Miss Ruth McKenna, speech instructor, directed the production.

Emma's world was that of the politely refined provincial society of Highbury, a small village about 16 miles from London, in the year 1814. Life in Highbury moved in its settled patterns from day to day. It was only an ear sensitively attuned to the subtle undercurrents which could capture the small dramas being enacted beneath the careful strata of "manners."

Such an ear had Jane Austen, who looked with detached irony at the narrow social circle of principal Highbury. To sustain this veneer of politeness and at the same time project the drama would be delicate task for the best of actors, but this cast of high school seniors proved themselves more than capable of the assignment. There was a workmanlike job throughout.

Highway's Rebel

The only rebel against Highbury's established way of life was Emma Woodhouse, who, with her natural inclination for match-making, has an idea that she is able to manipulate affairs. But Emma discovers that her world was established before she came into it, and the conclusion of the drama finds her content to conform. Jeanne Foote sustained a fine balance between the modern, independent Emma and the Emma of Highbury, 1814.

Ralph Schubert had the part of Mr. Knightley, who watches Emma's futile endeavors with amusement and exasperation. With carefully placed words and actions he almost imperceptibly works Emma's reformation.

Almost all the other members of the cast were typical of the society which Jane Austen knew so well. The delineation of these contrasting characters was excellent. Harriet Smith, played by Sally Rothschillo, was the breathless young girl who falls in love at a glance. Richard Fox had the part of Robert Martin, the adoring young swain who cited pretty love lines to Harriet.

Gossipy Old Maid

A confirmed hypochondriac, Mr. Woodhouse shivered at the thought of a draught. James Donohue carried the role with honors. A trivial gossipy old maid was Miss Bates, who talked incessantly and incoherently. Joan Sigl delighted the audience with her interpretation. Mary Ann Schaefer has the part of dear old Mrs. Bates. The character of the pharmacist, Mr. Perry, who repeatedly comforts Mr. Woodhouse that nothing is harmful in moderation, was interpreted by Tom Driscoll.

James Hensel was the conceited young clergyman, Mr. Elton, who was out to make a "money" marriage. He found his match in the imposing Augusta, who makes a triumphal entry in act two. Jeanne Neimeyer had the part Bernice Bleick was Jane Fairfax, the lovely girl who is pale and languishing because of the secret she is harboring. Frank Churchill, a pleasant, brisk young man played by James Chapelle, is Jane's secret fiance. Her wanness disappears when her engagement is made public.

Servants Parts

A gracious, mature pair of newlyweds were Mr. and Mrs. Weston, played by Robert Bohn and Virginia Grist. The parts of the ever faithful, perfectly mannered servants, Serle and Crandall, were taken by Roy Griesbach and Mary Ann Galpin.

The business staff for the play was composed of Miss Sophia Haase, German instructor, and Robert Bailey, who were general managers; Herbert Simon, commercial instructor, and Frank Kamp, financial manager; and Miss Eleanor Tredinnick, commercial instructor, and Dorothy Heilig, advertising manager.

The production staff was headed by Miss Kathryn Fralish, speech instructor, and Robert Forster, who were stage managers. Their assistants were Donald Owen, John Boon, Don Jabas, Robert Rossmoel and Robert Wilch. Mr. Harry Cameron, manual arts instructor, had charge of the stage building. On his staff were Harvey Priebe, Adelbert Boettcher, Walter Lillge and Glen Kitzmiller. Miss Fralish supervised the painting of the scenery. Margaret Albrecht, Eunice Forster, Billie Kolb, Ann Smith and Genevieve Schaefer composed her crew.

Property Managers

Property managers were Virginia Gorrow, Mary Ellen Schuetter and Marion Runge. Costumes were furnished by the Dave Miller Costume company, Milwaukee. The wardrobe assistants were Lois Seith, Virginia Stoefel, Ruth Theiss and Bernice Wolgram. Jack Burroughs, biology instructor, had charge of the lighting and special effects. On his corps were Fritz Hervey, Ethel Rademacher, George Schuessler, Lois Schultz, Don Dutcher, Jo Ann Wassenberg, Patricia Connelly, Helen Fox, Gordon Munson, Florence Winter and Betty Schneider.

The make-up assistants were Catherine Schuh, Cecelia Speil, Jane Christensen, Marjorie Oosterhaus, Jean Wallens, Mary Kay O'Keefe, Mary Jane Thomas and Janet Jones. Music before curtain time and between the acts was furnished by the high school orchestra under the direction of Jay Williams.

Episcopal Bishop Confirms Class of 18 Friday Evening

"God With Us," a text taken from the story of the Annunciation, was the subject of the sermon given by the Rt. Rev. Harwood Sturtevant, bishop of the Episcopal diocese of Fond du Lac, after he had administered confirmation to a class of 18 persons last night at All Saints Episcopal church. The bishop spoke to the new confirmands about their duties and responsibilities to the church and addressed the congregation concerning their responsibilities to the newly confirmed members.

Preceding the confirmation ceremony Bishop and Mrs. Sturtevant were guests of honor at a dinner given by the vestry and wives in the parish rooms. Twenty-six persons attended including the Rev. and Mrs. William J. Spicer.

Tomorrow morning the confirmation class will make its first communion at 8 o'clock at the church, after which the members and their families will be entertained at breakfast. Members of last year's confirmation class will serve the breakfast.

Robert Bailey will be leader at the meeting of High School Epworth League of First Methodist church Sunday night at the church. There will be a social hour at 5:30 and a devotional meeting at 6:30.

A program of games and other informal entertainment has been planned by D.E.E. club of First Congregational church for Monday night when it will entertain the M.S.M. club of First Methodist church at a social meeting at the former church. Circle 1 of the Congregational church will serve refreshments. The arrangements committee includes Mrs. Cora Bantle, sponsor of the group; Miss Eunice Rehfeldt and Miss Adelaide Ingraham.

Players to Present 'Kind Lady' Monday

One of the most exciting plays that followers of the Lawrence college theater have seen in a long time will unfold itself before the first-night audience Monday night at Lawrence Memorial chapel when the theater presents Edward Chodorov's "Kind Lady" under the direction of F. Theodore Cloak. A second performance will be given Tuesday night.

The play is modern in setting and its plot evolves around the gradual breaking down of an English lady's will by a band of crooks who move in on her and take possession of her house.

In the cast are John Riesen, Shorewood; Miss Betty Ann Johnson, Mayville; Miss Monica Worsley, Racine; Miss Jane Grise, Austin, Minn.; Miss Madeline Simmonds, Glen Ellyn, Ill.; Charles Gregory, Wilmette, Ill.; John Bodilly, Green Bay; Miss Florence Johnson, Ev-

Rev. Spangler Will Talk at Night Service

"RACE Prejudice in the Church" is the topic to be discussed by the Rev. R. H. Spangler, pastor of First Baptist church, at a special service at 7:30 Sunday night at the church. Community singing of familiar hymns will take place. These services are being sponsored by the Brotherhood.

"Religion and Education" is the subject of the address to be given by the Rev. Gerard Hesse, O. M. Cap., assistant pastor of St. Joseph's church, in the ninth of a series of ten lectures and forums on religious problems at 8 o'clock Monday night at the parish hall. The forums are held under the auspices of the Catholic evidence committee of Father Fitzmaurice council, Knights of Columbus.

When Baptist Young People's Union meets at 6:30 Sunday night in the church parlors, the topic for discussion will be "Essentials of Christian Living." Melvin Trentlage will be leader and sub-topics will be given by Miss Marion Maynard, Robert Dawson and Harold Johnson.

The last lenten luncheon of Women's Auxiliary of All Saints Episcopal church will take place at 1 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at the parish hall. Mrs. Alden Megrey will be luncheon chairman, and Mrs. Eugene Pierce will finish the book review of "The American City and Its Church."

A hamburger supper prepared by the members of Pilgrim Fellowship will be served at 6:30 Sunday night at the church, preceding the devotional and educational program of the group. Saburo Watanabe, Japanese student at Lawrence college, will be a guest at the supper and will speak to the members afterwards about his native land, Hawaii. The food committee includes Miss Deloris Stueck, Miss Shirley Miller, Miss Alberta Korsmo, Miss Jane Bixby, Karl Goldbeck and Frank Abendroth.

Young Ladies' sodality of St. Joseph's church will receive holy communion at the 8 o'clock mass Sunday morning. A breakfast and program in the parish hall will follow the mass.

Final arrangements for a play which Senior Luther League of First English Lutheran church will sponsor April 23 will be made at a meeting at 7:45 Monday night at the parish hall. A discussion will take place on problems of today, led by the Rev. F. C. Reuter, pastor. The entertainment committee will include the Misses Florence and Vera Mielke and Robert Maves, and the refreshment committee will consist of Herbert Mossholder, Russell Piette, Kenneth Sieth and the Misses Eunice Rehfeldt and Lois Sieth.

Eleven guests were present at the announcement party and court whist was played, prizes going to Mrs. L. Wassman, Miss Mieling and Mrs. Robert Seidler.

Announce Engagement With Rhyme Written On Music Staff Notes

By means of a rhyme written on the notes of music staff, announcement of the engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Gladys Mieling and Clifford Woellegel was made at a party last night at the home of the bride-to-be's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Mieling, 817 W. ## Neenah Couple Is Spending Vacation In Sea Island, Ga.

Mr. and Mrs. S. F. Shattuck, E. Wisconsin avenue, Neenah, are vacationing in Sea Island, Ga. Among the Neenah travelers who have returned from the south is Leo Schubert, E. Forest avenue, who has returned from Biloxi, Miss., where he spent the last two weeks.

Mrs. R. W. Roth, N. Commercial street, Neenah, will return Monday from Florida where she has been several weeks with her father who was convalescing from a serious illness.

Mr. and Mrs. George Wilz, route 1, Menasha, have returned from a western trip which covered approximately 6,000 miles. They left Jan. 3 and spent most of the winter in Phoenix, Ariz., continuing on to California to visit relatives and friends and to attend the San Francisco exposition. They also visited relatives in Portland, Ore., whom they had not seen in 59 years, and spent a few weeks in Dickinson, N. D. The trip was made partly by automobile and partly by train.

Prof. E. F. Krauss, Maywood, Ill., is spending the weekend with his son-in-law and daughter, the Rev. and Mrs. D. E. Bosserman, 219 S. Allen street.

Mrs. C. O. Gochbauer and daughter, Becky, 802 E. College avenue, who have been visiting relatives in Chicago for the last week, are expected home tonight.

Richard Van Wyk, 544 E. Hancock street, returned last night from Florida where he spent the last two weeks with a party of Milwaukee friends. The group remained most of the time in Ft. Lauderdale.

Mrs. John P. Reeve, 105 W. Atlantic street, returned last night from Racine where she spent the week with Mr. and Mrs. Carl Wetengel. Mrs. Wetengel is the former Elizabeth Fox.

Slam Missed as Jump Take-Out Is Overlooked

BY ELY CULBERTSON
Dear Mr. Culbertson: The following hand was dealt in a rubber bridge game the other night when North and South were very much on the short end of the score:

South dealer.
East-West vulnerable.

The bidding:
North West North East
Pass Pass 1 diamond Pass
2 spades 3 hearts 4 hearts Pass
4 spades Pass Pass Pass

"The result was that seven spades were made and North was in the doghouse. (North, wife, South, husband.) North figured that her four heart cue bid was a definite force and that the four spade bid by South was a closing bid.

"South claims that the four heart bid did nothing and that North should have bid clubs to show the control. How about it?"

"M. F. E. Connecticut."

North was to blame for missing the slam. This does not mean, however, that South's theory that North should have bid clubs is upheld. Most decidedly, it is not. I do not know whether or not the partnership was using the Culbertson four-five no trump convention, but, if it was, it would have been the correct bid over West's three hearts. South would have responded with five spades and North would have the values for a raise to six spades, which is exactly where the contract should have rested. A grand slam bid was out of the question because it involved a drop of the diamond queen. Without any adverse bidding a grand slam contract that depends on a finesse is a horrible risk, but in this case it would have been even worse.

The North player went astray because she did not realize the importance of South's two spade response. Even after a player has passed originally (which was the case in this deal) a jump take-out must be given as well as showing a hand just under an opening bid, or one with very strong distribution advantages. Thus, the moment North heard the two spade take-out she should have visualized a slam, since she had four honor tricks, good spade support, and very good distribution. The four heart cue bid was all right as far as it went (in the absence of the four-five no trump convention), but North should not have passed to the four spade response from South. It is easy to see that the cue bid in hearts did South no good and that, far from being encouraging, it must have discouraged him because it showed duplication of values. South himself had first round heart control, hence the ace in North's hand would be worth little, if anything. If North wanted to be conservative she could bid merely five spades, but a jump to six would have been the better course. The four spade bid was in no sense a "closing bid." It never is under such circumstances.

There is one refreshing part about my correspondent's letter, a case closely paralleling that of "man biting dog." This was one of those terrifically rare instances in which it was the wife instead of the husband who was "in the doghouse."

RETURNING A WEDDING CHECK

Dear Mrs. Post: I was recently married and then soon divorced. A relative had generously given me quite a sizable check for a wedding present, and I still have the money. I feel that I should not keep this because our marriage lasted no time at all. Naturally I'm not returning the small personal gifts, we had no wedding and did not get many presents, but I feel differently about this sum of money. Will you tell me what I had better do about it?

Answer: You would not be expected to return a sum of money that had already been spent. But, considering that you still have the check uncashed and that it was evidently intended for your future house, I think it would be best to return it with a note saying that you feel under the circumstances that you have no right to cash it. Then if your relative would like you to have the money just the same, the check can be returned to you.

GRANDMOTHER AT THE WEDDING

Dear Mrs. Post: My grandmother is eighty-five and she is coming to my wedding in church and to our house afterward to the breakfast. Please tell me what grandmother should wear. She has for years worn black, but perhaps this would not be suitable at the wedding. Also, she lives with an unmarried aunt. Should they be seated in the

Wife Tampers With Husband's Habits at Risk of Losing Him

BY DOROTHY DIX
Dear Miss Dix—I am just married for the second time, but unless my husband changes our marriage is going on the rocks. He is 24 years old, attractive in a way, has a promising future financially and is crazy about me, thinks everything I do is perfect, but he does not have the charm and personality to go with the type of friends I aspire to. His mannerisms are so repulsive to me that I shudder when I think of them. Now I know that his faults can be overcome because I have made myself over by imitating the conduct and dress and manners of people whom I admired. But, unfortunately, he is satisfied with himself. People like him and he is the life of the party wherever he goes, happy and jolly. So I don't know how to go about explaining to him that he is all wrong and that he must let me teach him the right things to do. How can I do this tactfully? Please advise me what to do, as I simply won't put up with these things. I know what I want of life and I am going to get it.

MRS. B.
Answer: Well, I think just at present you will have to decide whether you want in life is your husband or not. For, believe me, lady, you are in a fair way to losing him if you put him through the strenuous course of culture that you are planning.

By the time a man is old enough to marry, his mode of speech, his manners, his pronunciation, his habits, his tastes and opinions are set. Any wife interferes with them for as if they were more adaptable and who love change, anyway, can make themselves over to suit the fashion, or to meet a new condition in life. But the average man can no more do this than a leopard can change its spots.

Every day we see sylphlike creatures who six months ago were feather beds. We see women who never had a second dress to their backs when they were young become fashion-plates when they marry money. We meet women who return from a six-week trip to Europe with a heavy French accent. And it is a matter of common knowledge that no women talk so much about their family trees, once they get up a little in the world, as those who haven't an ancestor to bless themselves with.

But, except in rare cases, men are content to stay as they are. If as children they ate instead of dined, they continue to hold their forks as if they were agricultural implements. If they were brought up to speak a homely idiom, they lapse into it even after a college education. If they were one-gal-lus pants when they were boys, they seldom look comfortable in tailor-mades. And, no matter how high they climb in the world, they rarely forget old friends.

This is merely to show you how difficult it is going to be to cut over your husband to your own little pattern, and how almost impossible it is going to be to adorn him with all the frills and furbelows of culture.

As for doing it in a tactful way, that can't be done. There is no painless way of doing it.

Answer: She would either be seated in the front pew, fourth from the aisle, with your aunt on the far side of her or on the aisle in the second row with your aunt next to her. The aisle seat would give her a somewhat better view of the wedding than the seat further in the front row. Black would be quite proper with some cream color lace at the throat of her dress. Or, if her hair is white she might like the idea of wearing a silver gray dress of moire or something like that.

HOW CAN A TEA WAGON BE USED?

Dear Mrs. Post: I have received a lovely tea wagon and wish you would tell me just how I can use it properly?

Answer: This is a piece of furniture that I have always thought was curiously named, since the one thing it can't be used for is the proper service of hot tea. It would be very useful to trundle wheels ever they are to be served, cold tea, or any other cold drinks and refreshments. If you have no servant it would also be useful to stand beside you at the dining table, as a service table, as well as to help you in bringing the food to the dining table and later taking the used dishes out to the kitchen.

CASE RECORDS OF A PSYCHOLOGIST

By Dr. George W. Crane
Psychologist, Northwestern University

One of the greatest boons to motor safety is described below. Be sure to read this case, for it proves again that "horse sense" is more essential than a college diploma. Better send a copy of this to your automobile manufacturer, and thereby reduce our present terrible traffic toll of human lives.

CASE M-184: Robert C., aged 43, 25 an alert sales engineer.
"I am out here at Evanston," he telephoned, "and wondered if you were going to be in your office for a few hours."

"Some months ago I read your Case Record criticizing modern automobiles for not arranging the pedals so that the driver's foot would always be on the brake."

"Well, I have invented a solution to the problem, and want you to drive my car around Chicago for a few minutes and test it out. What do you say, Dr. Crane?"

Of course I said "Yes." An hour later Robert was at my office. He showed me his blueprints and explained his invention.
You readers may recall my former criticism of the present motor car. When we drive, we do not have our foot on the brake. Thus, when a child darts out ahead of our car, we waste a fraction of a second flashing a nervous impulse to our leg and foot. We must make three distinct movements, each involving a portion of a second, before we get our brake pedal in action.

Two of those movements are wholly unnecessary. It is a stupid oversight that such inefficiency and danger have been allowed to go unremedied up till now.

Robert's device consists of a foot plate shaped like the sole and heel of a shoe. It teeters back and forth over a fulcrum in the middle, much like a seesaw board.

By gentle pressure on the toes of the right foot, it operates the accelerator, just like the present foot accelerator.

The New Safety Brake Pedal
When you see danger ahead, you simply rock the foot back upon the heel, which operates the brake, meanwhile letting up on the gas lever. It is impossible to press accelerator and brake simultaneously.

It is so simple and efficient that a veteran motorist can instantly change over to this new pedal without upsetting his previous brake habits.

I tried it out to make sure. Robert urged me to take the wheel, and I drove through traffic, toured the outer drive, and came down Michigan Avenue to my office.

At various traffic signals I had to stop till the green light showed. I never had any desire to move my foot over to the usual brake pedal, but fell right into the new habit. If I had always driven a car equipped with this new gadget, the brake worked perfectly.

This new device should prove a boon to our safety campaigns. It ought to be standard equipment on every automobile, for it saves enough time to be worth at least 50 feet in our stopping distance at a high speed.

Another Victory For Horse Sense
That 50 feet may often spell the difference between a child's life, or a crash with another vehicle. Since there is no good argument in support of our present obsolete and barbarous arrangements of the foot pedals, I hope we can stampede the manufacturers and wake them up to a realization of their responsibility in promoting safety on the highways.

It is insane to boast about good brakes and then design a car to that the motorist does not have his foot on a brake pedal at all times.

Last week another engineer took me to task for criticizing the present arrangement of the pedals, saying they had to be like that!

But this is just another victory for "horse sense," in contrast to college theory!

(Dr. Crane will give personal attention to questions on psychological problems. Write him, in care of this newspaper, enclosing a 3-cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply. Letters and readers' names are never published.)

The Home Gardener

By Edwin H. Perkins

Plant food is taken up by vegetable growths from two sources, soil and air. Mineral elements, in varying combinations, are contained in most soil but until these elements are dissolved they are useless as food for plants. A soil intended for garden use should have good water retention and suitable drainage. If the ground is low and water does not drain away, drain tiles should be installed. A soil which will retain goodly quantities of water and plant food is the ideal to which every gardener strives. For that reason soil is annually prepared or worked.

Farmers use plows in working over their ground while persons with small garden areas find that the spade and spading fork do an acceptable job.

A satisfactory average plan is:

spread rotted cattle or horse manure over the garden to a depth of three inches. Next turn the soil over with the spade, leaving the soil lumpy. Follow this with another turning, pulverizing the dry soil with the back of the spading fork. The soil will then be found in good mechanical condition, well aerated, filled with plant food and containing water holding humus. Dusting with bone meal, later raking it in, adds to the available food materials. Lime should be dusted on only for plants which show a preference for it or if the soil is sour or acid.

A suitable substitute for manure is peat moss and fertilizer used according to the vendor's instructions. Fertilizers vary too much in strength to give specific instructions without an analysis at hand.

Beauty and You

by PATRICIA LINDSAY

One of my colleagues, another beauty editor, Miss Rawson Cades, answered the group of questions about skin so simply and well that I am taking the liberty of quoting her. Perhaps you have asked one of these questions and did not get the answer you wanted?

Q. How can you tell whether your skin is normal?
A. A normal skin is firm, fresh, fine-textured, with just enough "shine." It reflects good bodily health. In it the glands of the skin function normally.

Q. How can you tell whether your skin is dry?
A. In the dry skin the oil glands do not secrete enough oil to maintain "that dewy look." The dry skin has a tendency to lines and to parching. It literally seems to eat up oils and creams when applied to it. With age, most skins show a tendency to thinning and to drying.

Q. How can you tell if your skin is oily?
A. In the oily skin the oil glands function too freely. The skin has a tendency to too much shine and may develop coarse pores and blackheads. Powder does not adhere. If you suspect your skin is over-oiled, try the tissue paper test. On a clean piece of tissue paper press against the skin. Excess oil will be plainly visible.

Q. What external care should be given the so-called normal skin?
Lifetime of hiding the secret of the child's birth from you.

But your heart will tell you that your husband's affair with the child's mother happened before you were married, and that evidently it is over, or he would have married the mother. Also, your heart will tell you that there is a little child who needs you, whom you can make happy. Perhaps the knowledge of that will help you to forgive your husband for the way in which he has treated you. But in making your decision first have a plain talk with your husband. Try to get him to tell you the truth at last, and then you will know what is best to do.

Child Should Not be Afraid Of Confessing Wrongdoings

BY ANGELO PATRI
"Mother, here is ten cents that I wanted to keep out of the change."
"What's this?"
"When I bought the groceries I wanted to keep ten cents. I didn't give it to you and let you think the vegetables were forty cents and they were thirty. But I thought I'd better not do it, after all."

"I should say no. You were being a thief. Imagine! My child a thief! How could you think of such a thing? And I've always tried so hard to teach you to be straight and honest and above-board in everything. I'm brokenhearted."

"But mother, I didn't do it. I gave it back."
"But you had the thought of it. That's just as bad. Pray, pray hard that God will forgive you and never let you fall into such a temptation again. Yes, I forgive you, but you must confess your sin and ask forgiveness. That I should have seen this day."

O, yes, it happened. It happens oftener than you think. It is not enough for some of us that a child resists temptation; we insist that he should be free of temptation, and when he was tempted to do wrong he sinned in as far as he was tempted. It is just too much.

Nobody lives a day without being tempted one way and another to do less than right. None of us lives one whole day in perfect holiness. If one is to be condemned for the thought of wrongdoing, one is doomed at the start. Of course children think of doing wrong. They would like to pilfer a bit of candy, steal an hour for the movies from school, tell the teacher they had toothache last night and so couldn't do homework, play a while and say they helped the teacher. And when they resist the temptation they ought to be rewarded with all the medals of heroism. There is rejoicing among the Saints, we are told, when one resists temptation. Surely there ought to be loud rejoicings when we discover a child who has strength in the face of strong persuasion to the wrong side and held to the right.

I am strong for teaching children to tell the truth, to shun temptation, to hold fast to all that is good, as long as they can. But I understand the weakness of children, and the scant encouragement they get to do what is right in secret. Whenever one slips I want him to confess his fault, make good if he can, and begin again. I don't want to make it too hard for him to reach a standard of goodness acceptable to his conscience.

We have every sympathy for the mother who says, "Tell me the truth and I will not punish you." Sometimes a child takes advantage of this attitude, but rarely to degree where it becomes important. It is better to make it easy for a child to do right than to make it so hard for him that he has to have the courage of a martyr to tell his misdeeds, to confess his struggles, his triumphs and defeats in his struggle for spiritual growth.

Grown people, who have matured their spiritual power and understanding, must have some sympathy, and much understanding, of children's weakness and yearnings. It is necessary to be a good listener, a comforting Confessor, if we would rear children to spiritual maturity and fine character.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three-cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

DANGEROUS SERVICE

By GRACE ELLIOT TAYLOR

THE CHARACTERS
Peter Mallone, adventurous journalist.
Petronella: His sister.
James: Petrel's fiancé.

Yesterday, Worded about Peter and Tony in Madrid, Petrel comes up London for more news. She meets Clare Horton, again.

Chapter 37
Decision
I can't promise. There are reasons—I don't think I can go. But I might," Petrel stammered.

Clare Horton put out a hand and touched hers. "My dear child, I'd quite forgotten. Of course, you have reason. I saw the announcement in the Times. I should have congratulated you. No one couldn't expect a fiancée to let you go to Spain!"

"That is just over," Petronella told her. "That isn't the reason."

Instead of questioning her, Clare explained.

"I want to make a camp somewhere in the mountains near Madrid. Soon, the city is going to fall to Franco," Clare assured her with conviction. "We shall keep the children safe while the air raids finish their job, then return them to their homes, when Madrid has surrendered."

Petronella's expression was agonized, as she met Clare eyes.

"There's nothing I'd rather do. It would be fine, to try to save something from the awful wreckage, and pain, and grief, on ourselves, and our children. I've seen children so much suffering. I've seen children as you've seen them, pale, starving, and babies, with eyelids as mauve as crocuses. But if only you'd ask me to go somewhere else. Not to Madrid."

Quite bluntly, Clare suddenly asked her a question.

"Why?" She leaned towards her. "I've known since I first met you, that we ought to be talking about you," she stated quietly. "If it can't possibly help? Of course, if it can't, shut me up. I'm so used to organizing people," she smiled.

"I wish you could organize me. You—your mother Tony Lance?" Petronella asked. Clare did not pretend denseness.

"So he is the trouble!" For a moment Petronella was silent, while Clare waited. Then, as though she were ten years younger, she blurted out the truth. "I've loved him for years, years. I know he's no good to me, but I'm a fool, and can't help it."

One of Clare's eyebrows lifted slightly. "So you're the girl he met in Rangoon? I wondered, when he told me."

"He put me second, then, to his work. He just went off without a word."

"Yes, he told me something of the sort."

"It has been the same ever since. Whenever we've met, he has acknowledged it, and thought it unimportant. He knew I'd wait, because I couldn't help it. But he wouldn't admit he was glad of it, till we met last year in Cairo. He hadn't seen me for a long time. I'd changed a great deal. It suddenly struck him that, after all, my life with Peter had turned me into a possible wife for him. So, at last, when it really suited him, he admitted that he loved me. But then—"

"Yes, tell me what happened in Cairo?"

Petronella's low, urgent, unhappy voice described the few days of happiness, and the way they had ended. Her eyes met Clare's.

"You see! Life with Tony would be like that—danger, trouble, horror. If I'd married him, I'd be in Madrid, now."

Clare Horton sat back. Her lips smiling, her eyes soft. She shook her head gently at Petronella.

"Then that is where you ought to be, my dear. You love him. You can't make your own terms with love."

'SWING' FROCK

BY ANNE ADAMS

For the fine art of being fascinating, comes this entirely new a terno dress Pattern 4082. Fro the swirling hem of its eight-go skirt to the yoke-extension of 1 waist-back, it will win your heart (and the admiration of your family and friends too). How you'll enjoy the making, when you take it good advice offered by Ann Adams' Sewing Instructor! And you'll like the way lace is used . . . on the bodice front, around t neck and down again — as well . . . on the flatter curves of t shirred, button-trimmed sleeve. Another feature you'll praise e specially is the manner in which above-waist darts make the d phragm look smaller!

Pattern 4082 is available in misses' and women's sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 to 34 yards 39 inch fabric and 2 1/2 yard ruffling.

"I'm Glad I Failed"

James sat opposite Petronella's lunch. It was Monday. Her hair had been newly washed, and looked soft around her face. She was pale, shining eyed, and sitting nervously upright. The orchestra was playing a romantic selection from Lehar, and there was a pleasant aroma from the sizzling grill, and the flowers between them on the table.

Her passport lay on the white cloth. She had shown him her special visa. He had heard her interjection. It was incredible, though James. She was leaving this 31. Spain. She was going back to those two, and had promised to undertake Clare Horton's difficult, probably thankless responsibilities as an excuse for going. James was horrified, afraid of her life.

"Because of the degree of love I must always feel, and the mixture of admiration and pity for her, h would apply the greatest pressure he could to stop her going. For h doubted that she thought it he duty, in a generous cause. She had not stressed that reason. No, sh needed saving from herself, from her infatuation for Lance. And yet her love for Peter."

She certainly did not know, yet about himself and Tamara. If h could prevent her committing thi final folly, she need never know He had told Tamara that, sternly. He was prepared to give up their new, quickening love for his former loyalty. She valued her engagements as a safe background, even if she did not love him passionately. They would be happy. He would probably be safer with her than with Tamara.

"It's a crazy idea. You can't do any real good."

"But, Petrel, can't you see it isn't your job? You're engaged to be my wife. To live in England."

"There was no longer any question of our marrying one another," she smiled at his blustering.

"But we settled all that. I knew you still loved Tony, and always will to a certain degree, in spite of the rotten way he's consistently treated you. There isn't any need to throw our solid, reliable understanding over because of him."

Wasn't he going to say anything about Tamara? Didn't he want to be free? Why did he keep giving her these chances? James looked away. She understood. No wonder she had very nearly succeeded in loving him!

"If I could have forgotten Tony, I would have done," she said, her voice gentle with gratitude. "But I'm glad I failed, James. We might have been happy together if I'd never met Tony. I might still have made you happy if Tamara hadn't slipped into my place. Thank you for pretending so hard, to try to stop me."

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

A Little Saturday Talk

Among the members of our Scrapbook club who send letters to me quite often is Harriet Inglesby. Here is part of one of her letters:

"We do not admire Hitler in our home. We think he will come to a bad end. A friend of mine says the world is getting worse. He's older than I am, so perhaps he's right, but doesn't the world seem more interesting all the time?"

As to Hitler's "end," I shall have little to say. It is a matter of guesswork to figure what will happen to him.

As to whether the world is getting better or worse, I have a few things in mind. If we look only at the past few years, with "dictators" in Europe making the world tremble about war, we can say that things seem to have grown worse.

Yet we should take a long-distance view of the human struggle. Down through the ages, men and women have worked to make the world a better place to live in, and many have given their lives for what they believed to be right.

Let us see how some things are better now, we do not need to go back to the Stone Age. We need only study Europe as it was seven or eight hundred years ago.

At that time, most of the people were "serfs." They worked on land which was not their own. They labored almost like slaves to raise crops for the lord who owned the land. If they did not have a good crop in a certain year, they were in danger of starving, or at least of suffering great hunger.

The serfs were not called slaves, but they might almost as well have been so. They were not free to move from farm to farm. When the noble sold his farm, the serfs went along with it, and worked for the new master.

It is safe to say that a deer or wild boar in the lord's forest, and was caught, he suffered greatly. He might have his ears cut off, or even be blinded!

Terrible things happen even today, but people do not need to fear being punished in such ways. Men who commit terrible crimes may go to prison for life, or may die in the electric chair, but it is not for shooting an animal in a noble's forest.

Next Saturday I shall take up the same question again, and shall give other reasons for believing the world has grown better in many ways, also one reason I think it's worse.

Rhinelanders Is Class A Champ

Beats Wausau in Final, 46-29; Altoona Is Class C Titlist

BY DAVE ROWE
MADISON—(AP)—Rhinelanders, which defeated Wausau, defending Class A champions; Altoona which topped Port Edwards in the Class C finals last night, and Watertown, winners of the B crown Thursday night, will reign as this year's basketball champions of the Wisconsin Interscholastic Athletic association.

The Rhinelanders, undefeated in 20 games, displayed the most devastating offense of the tournament and were at peak form as they defeated Wausau 46-29.

Johnny Koltz, playing the final prep game of his four year career, won individual honors hands down. His 26 points hoisted his three game total to 64, an average of 21.3 per game. The team collected 135 points, averaging 45.

Wausau went down like a true champion, fighting back tenaciously but to no avail. The Rhinelanders, after four years of waiting, marched home with their first WIAA bunt.

Athletic Director Harry Stuhlreder, of the University of Wisconsin, introduced Coach Russ Leksell and Captain Koltz. Both made short statements, Koltz said:

"I am the happiest man in the world tonight. I knew I was playing my last game for the green and white and hope that in a couple of years I'll be playing for Wisconsin." He hinted that several teammates will matriculate at the Badger school.

Rhinelanders opened wide its bag of tricks and displayed an assortment of uncanny shots which left the crowd of 2,500 gasping in amazement. The club had speed, finesse, accurate shooting eyes and defensive power to spare.

Altoona's 44-30 victory over Port Edwards was well deserved. After a mediocre season, Coach Harold Isaacson's railroaders entered the state tourney a long shot choice. A steady attack by Bob Sturz and Glenn Gilbert, forwards, gave the new Class C rulers uphill decisions over Denmark and Oondossagon.

The championship encounter was another nip-and-tuck affair. Altoona's smooth working team took advantage of every break, played the rebounds smartly and shot only when odds favored a basket. It was not until Bob Schenfeldt, regular forward and backboarder, the Port combination, was chased on four personal fouls, that the losers fell completely out of the running. Gilbert and Sturz had 25 points between them for scoring honors.

Antigo in Close One
Antigo won a close but uninteresting game from Wauwatosa, 21-20 for Class A consolation honors. Morley Fraser, substitute forward, almost pulled the game out of the fire for Martin Jackson's Red Raiders. He completed three free throws in the final minute of play.

George Svendsen's Antigo quieted stepped away to lead after the first period and never relinquished it. Clair Voss, Antigo center, and his opponent, Bud Speich, were outstanding on defense, with Hal Fermanich, forward, chief point maker of the afternoon.

The Class C consolation trophy went to Spring Green, but not until two overtime periods were played. Denmark forced the Green Avalanche to the limit before dropping a 26-22 game. Coach Willard Turner's victors built up a huge early lead only to see it disappear later in the contest. The Danes, with Dallas Dimmer, forward and Bob Kriwanek, defenseman, leading the pack, took an 18-15 lead with two minutes of the regular session left, after trailing to that point.

A free throw by Billy Cork, high scoring Spring Green forward, and a charity toss by Ted Linn, center, counted 12-11 all as the regulation game ended. Each team made a basket in the first extra period, but Cork, Junior Sorensen, forward, and Linn potted shots for Spring Green, while Denmark could contact but once. The sun sounded a few seconds later.

Paul F. Neversman, secretary of the WIAA indicated the attendance at this year's tourney was higher than that of the 1938 meet.

Johnny Schmitz, Former Wausau Hurler, Hit Hard in 3 Frames

Daytona Beach, Fla.—(AP)—Eleven runs weren't enough for the Milwaukee Brewers yesterday as they dropped their fourth straight exhibition game to the Minneapolis Millers, who scored 19 runs.

The Milwaukee bright spot again was Gordie Foth, rookie shortstop, with two doubles and a single in five trips.

The Millers hit safely 10 times in the first three innings off Johnny Schmitz, 17-year-old southpaw from Wausau.

LYLE VANDERVELDEN thumped a 227 game and jolted a 609 series to set the individual pace during Merchant league matches at Arcade alleys last night. Team honors went to Schuessler Weatherstrips with a 1,058 single and Sinclair Oil with a 2,940 total.

Hooks and Tony keggers forged into the lone league lead when they took two games from Schuessler bowlers. Cy Lippert topped the victors with a 212 game and 533 series while Don Huhn topped a 598 with games of 214 and 223. Frank Kroiss grooved 221 and George Schuessler cracked 219 for the losers.

Johnson Hatters lost a share of the first place berth when they were spilled in three straight games by the lowly Franti V-8 squad. Fred Semmelhack led the attack with a 208 single and 568 triple while Wally Roblee turned in 548 for the Hatters.

Weyenberg Dairy grand slammed Unmuth Drugs as Ed Flemming counted 211 and 533 and C. Braeger tallied 203. Melvin Schneider showed 516 and F. Laabs rolled 202 to pace the losers.

Wisconsin Distributing company collected three games from Checker Cabs in another upset. Rolly Sonnelmeier totaled 477 for the winners while Elmer Selig tripled 520 for the losing five.

Two games went to Miller High Life in a match with Johnson Shoe Builders. Tim Sauer banged a 216 single and 580 series and Meyer counted 204 for the winners while Francis Fisher had 501 for the losers.

Clark's Cleaners won the odd game from Sinclair Oils as Ted Monyette poked 499. High for the losers was Bill Hobbins with a 263 game and 548 series.

Stein's Transfers won two games from Peterson-Rehbein as Jack Fries collected 548. Ernie Brueggeman hit 528 for the losing squad.

Al's Tavern picked up two games from Leath Furniture company as VanderVelden whacked his high marks and C. DeYoung added a 220. Milt Leininger banged two games of 200 even and a 563 series and K. Pinkerton shot 217 for the losers.

Scotty Williams On Mat Program

Welterweight Champion To Meet Torchy Smith, Newcomer

Menasha—Scotty Williams, world professional welterweight wrestling champion, will appear on the grappling show at S. A. Cook armory next Wednesday night, according to the promoter, William Erickson.

The champion has been signed for an overnight contest with Torchy Smith, a newcomer from Honolulu. Smith weighs about 175 pounds and will have a decided advantage over the champion who has appeared on two previous shows. The two will tangle in the 30-minute, one-fall opener.

Stan Pesek might be observed at the mat show. The popular Polish grappler will receive a purse and gifts. He is signed for the windup bout, a two out of three fall contest with an hour time limit.

His opponent will be Tex Hager, former cowboy from Klamath Falls, Ore., who gained approval of Twin City fans in his first appearance at the last show.

men's volleyball team will engage in a volleyball match. It will be the first time that the local association ever has engaged in so extensive a program with another association.

The players on the American league all-star team will include Donald Strutz, Edward Freude, Clarence Miller, Kenneth Thompson, James McClellan and Robert Grishaber. The National league all-stars will be composed of Eugene Pegal, Robert Bowers, John Bartman, Robert Block, Ted Heid, Frank Kampe, Dan Jahnke and Milton Bergner.

No admission will be charged.

WATCH FOR COOK KIT
BARGAINS
and Stock Necessary Equipment
By Dillon Wallace

FREQUENTLY by watching for sales and by nosing around stores at this off-time of the year, a camper can pick up many bargains in camping equipment. Useful items for camp cooking can be had at prices far below what they will sell for when the vacation season rolls around.

The amount of camp cooking utensils depends upon how many people go on a trip, but it is wise to plan enough. It is better to leave some equipment at home than to be caught without essential items.

There are many good nesting kits put out by the outfitters these days, and one for a party almost any size can be assembled if there is time to do it and the buyer doesn't have to rush around at the last minute to do his buying. Even some of the expensive kits leave out necessary articles, and a study of essentials should be made before taking it for granted that a kit is perfect.

By assembling his own kit, a camper knows just what he has and what he needs. Bulk and weight should be considered. On certain types of trips it is foolhardy to be burdened with unwieldy utensils and a big kit. Somewhere along the line sacrifices must be made to ensure comfort or utility.

Five-Quart Pot Is Needed
Some suggested items for the needs of the average party for four are these: a cooking pot with a cover which will hold about five quarts; a pan with a folding handle which is about nine by three inches and will hold between three and four quarts; a combination tea and coffee pot with a good capacity of approximately three and a half quarts; a frying pan ten inches in diameter with a folding handle; and a large stirring spoon.

Each camper on the trip should have one plate of either enameled finish or aluminum, one tin cup with an open handle to aid in nesting, one dessert spoon, one knife, and one fork. If a camper does not carry a sheath knife, there should be one good, strong butcher knife in the kit. All of these utensils should weigh under five or six pounds and should not be bulky. They can be packed in a space ten by a trifle over eight inches.

It is often possible to include a reflecting bowl or Dutch oven for making biscuits or biscuit bread and corn bread. Such bakers as folded into compact form can be purchased. Some campers like to carry a broiler although pointed sticks can be used for broiling. Even wire can be rigged into a fairly respectable broiler.

'DON'T READ LOU OUT OF THE LINEUP'—DILLON GRAHAM

Lou Gehrig
Not So Pert

BY DILLON GRAHAM
ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—(AP)—Perhaps you read that little training-camp brief which said Marse Joe McCarthy was using Tom Henrich occasionally at first base.

Well, that's the tipoff on Lou Gehrig. Lou is 36 and is getting no younger fast. His record string of 2,122 consecutive games has taken a lot out of the Iron Horse's legs.

Frankly, he doesn't look so pert this spring. Skipper McCarthy professes not to be worried. He says Lou has another year or two of good ball-playing in him before the Yankees have to rope in another first-baseman.

McCarthy really doesn't care to discuss the Gehrig situation. The story is that he is drilling Tom so that he can replace Lou at first in the late spring of 1939.

Gehrig slowed down noticeably last year but some said it was because he wasn't in the best of shape.

Those months in Hollywood when he was making that movie epic, "Rawhide," didn't do Lou any good. For the first time since 1925 Lou batted under .300. His average was .295. But remember that while that may have seemed poor for Gehrig it still would have been regarded as a fine batting mark for most any other first-baseman. For Lou hit more than 20 homers and knocked in 114 runs.

It's quite possible that if Henrich does replace him in games the Yankees have sewed up that Lou may finish the coming season with a pretty fair average. If he doesn't have to tire himself out chargin' through every game he'll probably have strength enough to turn in a respectable season, even for a Gehrig. So don't read Lou out of the lineup just yet.

IN OUTFIELD
When Henrich was first obtained two years ago, McCarthy said he'd be Lou's successor. In the meantime he'd play the outfield. He hit .320 in his first year with the Yankees. Last season he dropped to .270 but hit plenty of home runs and knocked in 91 runs, and that's good enough, even for the Yankees.

With Henrich due for at least part-time duty at first base, the Yankees will carry six outfielders. Selkirk, DiMaggio, Henrich and Powell will be holdovers and Chas. Keller from Newark and Joe Gallagher from Kansas City probably will be the others.

Buckeye Cagers Meet Oregon Tonight for N.C.A.A. Crown

Evansville, Ind.—(AP)—Coach Harold G. Olsen taught his Ohio State basketball players to do their best when the chips were down and they have learned their lesson well.

Through December and January the club appeared headed nowhere. But a late season hot streak gave the team the Big Ten championship and now the Buckeyes have gone on to win their way into the finals of the National Collegiate Athletic association tournament.

Olsen's team plays the University of Oregon at Northwestern university gym Monday night for the N. C. A. A. championship.

The Bucs lost six of their first 14 games. But they haven't lost a game since Feb. 6. After losing to Indiana on that date, Ohio State won five straight conference games to take the conference title with a record of 10 victories in 12 games.

Getting better all the time, the Bucs then went to Philadelphia for the eastern regional N. C. A. A. meet. The Ohio five outlasted Wake Forest, 64 to 52 and then crushed Villanova, 53 to 36.

Ann Arbor, Mich.—(AP)—Those old Western conference athletic rivals, Michigan and Ohio State, were involved in another dog fight today as the 16th annual national collegiate swimming championships moved into the final day.

With six of the 11 events completed, Michigan, seeking its sixth straight N.C.A.A. title, had 34 points to Ohio State's 30 and there was every indication the teams would drive down to the final event—the 400-yard free style relay—neck and neck.

Vic Frasier Found to Have Fracured Skull; Hit by Ball

Los Angeles—(AP)—Just when Manager Jimmy Dykes figured the injury jinx was on the run, Pitcher Vic Frasier has suffered a fractured skull, placing him on the shelf for at least two months.

Frasier was hit on the head by a ball thrown last Wednesday but no one knew it was anything more serious than a bump until yesterday. The ball, thrown by Shortstop Luke Appling, hit the 33-year-old right-hander behind the left ear.

At the time Frasier's helmet rubbed his head and a few minutes later went out and pitched four innings against the Pittsburgh Pirates, giving up only one hit.

The next day, however, he complained of headaches and was put to bed after x-rays were made. Friday an examination of the pictures revealed the fracture.

Dr. Burns Eastman, attending physician, said Frasier's condition was not critical.

Frasier, former major leaguer, apparently on the road to a fine comeback, had been counted on by Dykes as a starting pitcher. He won 17 games and lost seven last season with St. Paul in the American association.

A LIGHTNING PLAY
One of the most dramatic plays ever scored in the big leagues went into the books on August 16, 1909, when the Pittsburgh Pirates and the New York Giants clashed at Forbes Field, Pittsburgh.

Behind Crier McEwen's pitching, the Giants were leading 2-1 as the game went into the last half of the eighth. Then things started to happen. A storm whirled out of the Alleghenies, and the field became so dark that they switched on the grandstand lights. Ham Hyatt tripled for the Pirates, and Abbatino, sent in to run for Hyatt, scored the tying run on Barbeau's outfield fly. Leach doubled to put the winning run on base. Clark flied out and Honus Wagner was walked on Manager McGraw's order.

With two men on, things looked pretty black for the Giants. They grew blacker when Jack Miller lashed a mighty drive out into right field. It looked like a triple or homer.

"There's the game!" roared the crowd. Leach and Wagner were tearing like mad around the bases. So was Miller. The ball was lost to sight.

Suddenly a flash of lightning swept the murky darkness, and in that instant Red Murray, the Giant outfielder, after a panting sprint made a relay one-handed circus catch of the ball. The two Pirate runs scored were nullified—and the game was called as a ball hit as rain came down in torrents.

Alderman, Former Police Head Freed In Chicago Trial

Chicago —(4)— Alderman

E. Konkowski and his former precinct captain, Stephen Idzikowski, charged with accepting money on promises of police jobs, were acquitted early today.

A criminal court jury deliberated eight hours and reached the agreement five minutes before a deadline set by Judge William J. Lindsay. The court had intended to noid the jury until Monday if no verdict were reached by 2 a. m.

Several members of the jury said 25 ballots were taken and that the jurors were divided evenly until the final vote.

Thomas Bugan, assistant state's attorney, had asked for a conviction on a conspiracy count charging the men with accepting $600 from a candidate for a police job.

"It was the only verdict that could be reached," said Konkowski who is alderman of the twenty-sixth ward.

Asked if he intended to prosecute the defendants on a similar in-diciement that is still pending, Prosecutor Bugar said:

"If that's the way the public and jurors feel, what's the use? It's just a waste of time."

Three Racine Youths Face Holdup Charge

Kenosha — AP—Police Lieutenant Matthew Kirsch said today three 16-year old high school boys had admitted participating in a holdup of a Racine couple at Petrifying Springs park near here last night. Kirsch said all three had police records.

Two of the youths were arrested at their homes after Deputy Sheriff Thomas Jester picked up the other boy at the park.

John Vance, Racine, reported he and a girl companion were held up by two youths who took his car and a wallet containing $40. The car and wallet were recovered. Jester said the third boy remained in another automobile during the holdup.

Dies in Carrying Out Bell Ringing Mission

Columbus, Wis. — AP—Day in and day out, Mrs. Mary Link rang the angelus bells of St. Joseph's Catholic church at nearby East Bristol, calling upon the devout to pause for devotions.

The chimes sounded Thursday morning and noon, but at night they were mute. Yesterday morning the bells again failed to greet the rising villagers.

Fearful, because she was 75 and unfeebled, residents set out to look for her. They found her body near the church, apparently where she had fallen in a last attempt to fulfill her mission.
